Mr. Young on Banks

The Prince Might Worry

A Rampaging Lady

Pope Pius to Broadcast

By Arthur Brisbane

EXTREMELY IMPORTANT to American business, especially to the little man who would like to know that his savings are safe and not used by grafters in their speculations, is a suggestion by Owen D. Young. He would establish government control of commercial banks, for their regulation and the public's protection.

Mr. Young points out that this country has had 6000 bank failures in the past 10 years.

He did not say so but everybody knows that dishonesty is back of many such failures. Mr. Young says truly, "it is a great reflection on the American people that they cannot get a banking system which will prevent such tragedies as we have witnessed."

The Prince of Wales and his brother yesterday had arranged to fly over the Panama Canal. They will observe, perhaps with anxiety, that we haven't done anything much to protect the canal from destructive airplane attack.

That is important to them, since there is little doubt of continued peace between this nation and the British Empire, and the British use the canal that we built as freely as we do, and for the same fees.

Mr. Keaton, called "Buster," now shares Kipling's opinion of female violence. He shows scratches, bruises and a wrecked studio. Two studio policemen were needed to overpower the young lady in the case. It would be unkind to mention her name.

The lady weighs 139 pounds, and Buster Keaton told her she was "getting too fat." That's the last that he remembers distinctly, although there was something about a $500 bet, which the lady collected.

Mr. Keaton says the screams of the lady who asked him for $20,000 more were terrific, as the police carried her away.

Nobody knows what terrific force is locked up in calm, placid womanhood. It's like the smooth waters over Niagara's edge.

Next Thursday, February 12, Pope Pius XI will broadcast for the first time, heard all over the earth.

It would be difficult to overestimate the possibilities of increased influence that regular broadcasting by the Pope might establish.

His advisers, doubtless, will remind him that his first talk to the world will take place on Lincoln's birthday, an excellent opportunity to say something to interest all Americans, regardless of religion.

Other cities will reau with a gasp that projects for public improvements which New York now has in hand will cost more than two thousand million dollars.

Mr. Berry, comptroller, delights the hearts of capitalists, announcing the sale this year of $282,130,000 of city bonds. On their income Uncle Sam collects no income tax.

Stalin of Russia, who ought to know, does not agree with American financiers who predict disastrous failure for Russia's "five-year plan."

He says the plan will be completed, certainly inside of four years, perhaps in three.

Men looking for jobs here will be amazed to hear that Russia is urging workers from the outside, skilled men especially, to come and take Russian jobs.

Some have accepted the invitation.

How do you suppose Russia manages to escape the unemployment disease?

He expects all the workers of the world, including our own, to point to Russia, saying, "There is our government, our kind, Soviet. Let us support them, against the capitalists, in bringing about the world revolution."

Stalin does not know American brakemen, carpenters, engineers, plumbers, etc. They have other plans, and Karl Marx's whiskers alone would "put them off" before they had begun to study his theories.

Long before American workers join Russia's government, somebody of the Napoleon or Genghis Khan type will probably come along and take charge of Russia.

That always has happened, in revolutions.

Chairman Legge, of the Farm Board, predicts wheat shortage, which may be serious. The carry-over last year was only 40 per cent of normal. Drouth is widespread throughout the country, not enough snow and sub-soil moisture. It would be interesting if Uncle Sam should make a profit out of his corner in wheat, after all.

BOMB PLOT ON MUSSOLINI CONFESSED

Naturalized American Citizen Admits Plan to Assassinate Il Duce

Rome, Feb. 6 (AP)—Michele Schirru, arrested Tuesday for possession of firearms and explosives, confessed today, police said, that he had planned an attempt on the life of Premier Mussolini.

He had brought two high explosive bombs here for that purpose, police said he told them.

Schirru was arrested after a gunfight with police and there were rumors at the time that he had planned an attempt on Mussolini's life, but these were vigorously denied by the authorities.

WOUNDED THREE AND SELF

Police said Schirru drew a revolver while he was being searched in the police station, wounded three policemen and attempted suicide, inflicting a serious wound in his head.

In rooms which he occupied in two hotels police said they found two bombs so constructed as to be used either as time bombs or percussion bombs.

Schirru was born in Sardinia but had traveled extensively. Police

Woman in Police 'Frameup' Vanishes

New York, Feb. 6 (AP)—The young business woman who under the fictitious name of "Mrs. Betty Smith," testified at a magistrates' inquiry that she was "framed" by police on vice charges, has left New York, it was learned today when she was sought to testify before a grand jury.

Her disappearance has caused consideration of perjury charges against two policemen to be indefinitely postponed.

Marilyn Miller Has 'Em Guessing

Paris, Feb. 6 (INS)—Friends of Marilyn Miller, American musical comedy and screen star, today were wondering whether to take Miss Miller's—was it a threat or a promise?—to marry Fred Astaire, fellow American thespian.

Responding to a query whether she would marry Michael Farmer, Miss Miller was quoted as saying:

12 HURT IN RIOT IN JAP DIET

Tokyo, Feb. 6 (AP)—The flash of a dagger in an ante-room of the Japanese House of Representatives today precipitated a fight in which about a dozen persons, two of them members of the Diet, were injured.

Political feelings between the opposition and the government was unleashed in the ensuing melee, in which ash trays and other objects were hurled.

A meeting of the budget committee, at which the trouble started, broke up in disorder. The man who had charged Shidehara with an "indiscreet" utterance regarding Japan's security under the London Naval Treaty.

Earlier today Shidehara had been denounced and an attempt by the opposition to rush him had been blocked by the police.

Tactics interpreted as designed to unseat the Minseito (majority party) ministry of Hamaguchi and Shidehara immediately preceded today's disturbance.

HOOVER FIGHTS RELIEF PACT

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP)—Hope for a solution of the deadlock on relief legislation threatening an extra session of Congress was maintained on Capitol Hill today, as the agreement on a basis for settlement reached by the Senate leadership was put up to the House leaders.

President Hoover continued silent, awaiting the outcome of negotiations proceeding at the Capitol, although it was made clear that he would not sanction any relief appropriation for food.

The dominant House Republican majority and the President have stood together. The question today seemed to be one of bringing an understanding between them on the compromise advanced by the Senate leaders of both parties.

Pope Trains at Microphone for His First Broadcast

Rome, Feb. 6 (AP)—Pope Pius XI already has begun speaking into a microphone in preparation for his first broadcast next Thursday, inaugurating the new Vatican radio station.

Using the beautiful microphone in his private office, the Pontiff is submitting docilely but whimsically to a course of instruction through which radio experts and a monsignor of his household skilled in diction are putting him.

Although Pope Pius makes his broadcast in Latin, his advisers want his voice to carry over the air in such a manner as to thrill men listeners who do not understand his words. The Pope has a clear, cultivated voice of rich timbre but of moderate strength.

Pope Pius today inaugurated the Vatican's new electric power plant, recalling that 52 years ago when he was first ordained a priest the papal palace was lighted by gas and candles.

COURT BATTLE LOOMS ON BAIL FOR GARRETT

Ex-Raider Will Not Get Out of Jail If He Can Help It, Foley Declares

Dist. Atty. Foley today planned court battle to prevent the release of Oliver B. Garrett on bail until his retrial, which probably will be held in April.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle, government prosecutor at the trial of the former policeman, his wife and Lillian V. Hatch, which ended in a disagreement, was assigned to oppose Garrett's counsel at a hearing in superior criminal court before Judge Harold P. Williams.

Herbert F. Callahan, who was expected to argue motions to lift Garrett's default and admit him to bail, was delayed in his appearance in behalf of the raider because of a case in Dorchester court.

WILL TRY 4 PLEAS BAIL

Garrett was to be taken from Charles st. jail to court as soon as Callahan filed his motions.

"There will be no bail for Garrett if I can prevent it," said Dist. Atty. Foley.

Preparations for the bail fight did not interfere with the prosecutor's investigation of rumors that attempts had been made to fix the Garrett jury.

"Any evidence brought to my attention will be thoroughly investigated before the probe is ended," said the district attorney.

It was reports today that during the 28 hours that the jury deliberated on the fate of the defendants there had been some discussion in the jury room of a rumor that two of the jurors had been in communication with jury-fixers.

One other witness was scheduled to be questioned by Foley and Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle as a result of the story unfolded to them yesterday by William H. McMasters, one of the nine members of the jury said to have balloted for conviction.

The district attorney is practical-

Employment, Not Dole, Should Be Program for Needy, Says W. R. Hearst

THE SENATORS WHO ARE ADVOCATING direct distribution of funds to those who are suffering from financial depression or drought disaster are of course animated by the best motives but are taking an un-American method and a most dangerous and demoralizing method of relieving distress.

The last thing an American government should do is make dependents of independent American citizens.

Distress should be relieved by employment and not by donations.

In fact the proper policy of the government at this time could be summarized in a phrase—MILLIONS FOR EMPLOYMENT BUT NOT ONE CENT FOR DOLE.

* * *

THE experience of European nations with the dole must be known to men as intelligent and well informed as members of the United States Senate.

The demoralizing effect of the dole in England among a people similar to our own must be a matter of knowledge to all Senators.

But even without that knowledge, every intelligent and reasoning American should realize the unavoidable effect upon the morale of a people who become dependent upon government largesse, and so gradually relinquish their up-standing dependence upon their own effort.

The excuse for the dole in England was even greater than any possible excuse or reason or argument for anything approaching the dole in America based on present conditions.

But there is not a wise statesman in England today who does not regret the dole and who is not trying to devise means and methods to free the government from this burden and the people from its demoralizing effect.

Moreover, the dole has a degrading effect upon statesmen as it has demoralizing effect upon the recipients, and the government of England, having once begun the dole, is now afraid to stop it.

The statesmen of England are not more wor-

GAS FELLS 7, 1 MAY DIE

A woman was near death today and six other persons were affected by escaping illuminating gas that seeped through from a man in Beverly today.

Mrs. Martha Sussman, 32, of 12 Middle st., was seriously affected. The timely return home of her husband saved her from death. She was unconscious when he entered the house.

Those slightly affected by fumes were Mr. and Mrs. Roy T. Hatch and two children and Mr. and Mrs. Carl B. Jacobson, their homes adjoining the Sussman home.

Sussman found his wife unconscious in bed. Their young child, in a room removed from the fumes, was not affected. Sussman carried his wife to a piazza and telephoned police and firemen. Firemen revived her with an inhalator, while police traced the trouble to a main in the street.

Mr. and Mrs. Hatch and their children and the Jacobsons were less seriously affected, as windows in their homes were open.

BOSTON BEATS CZECHS, 1-0

Krynica, Poland, Feb. 6 (AP)—The Boston Hockey Club continued its winning ways today in the international Hockey Tournament in progress here, defeating the strong Czechoslovakian team, 1 to 0.

With the Czechs out of the way the only test remaining for the American six is their Sunday game against the University of Manitoba Grads, Canadian entry in the tournament and co-favorites with Boston for the championship.

The Boston six still must meet Poland, in addition to Canada, in the round robin schedule among the six finalists, but that match is expected to be an easy one.

Today's low score was unfavorable to the championship aspirations of the Boston team as the winner is to be decided by total goals scored. Today's score made Boston's total 6 for the three games it has played.

Ramsay again led the Boston offensive today, scoring the lone goal and constantly menacing the Czech goal. Peck, in the nets for the Europeans, was their outstanding player, making several remarkable saves.

BENNINGTON ST. THEATER AND STORES BURNED

Two Families Are Driven From Nearby Homes; Traffic Tied Up; the Loss Is $10,000

The Orient Garden Theater, three stores, clubrooms, bowling alleys and offices were damaged in the two-story brick and stucco block and from the two-story frame dwelling at 989 Bennington st., scorched by the flames, two families with eight children were driven.

Frank J. McFague and Edward J. Feeley, both attached to Ladder 21, were badly cut by glass and taken to the East Boston Relief hospital.

A dozen other firemen suffered minor bruises in falls on ice as water froze quickly.

3 ALARMS SOUNDED

Three alarms were sounded before the fire was under control and hose lines and apparatus across the Elevated tracks tied up all traffic on the Gladstone and Revere car line running into Maverick sq. for more than an hour.

Assistant Chief Henry J. Powers gave the minimum loss as $10,000.

He said the fire started in the Peter Beatrice bowling alleys in the basement, possibly from a cigarette. It worked back stage into the theater and up the partition through the roof.

The Alice Burke school of dancing and the Old Timers' Club, on the second floor, and the Orient Fish Market, a shoe repair shop and a barbershop on the street floor were damaged.

FAMILIES DRIVEN OUT.

As the flames threatened the house next door, Mrs. Alfred E. Snow, wife of the janitor, and two children vacated the first floor and Mrs. Emma Silva, with six children, fled from the second floor apartment.

The burned block backs up on the Orient Heights station and tracks of the Narrow Gauge railroad and thousands of commuters in-bound to work had a close-up view of the flames.

It was the second spectacular blaze in East Boston within 24 hours. In the first, police and firemen rescued 11 persons when flames destroyed a three-family house at 103 Porter st.

Two men ill with the grip, Israel Borisonsky, 55, and his son, Abraham, 28, were carried out and sent to East Boston Relief Hospital.

Appropriation Asked by Governor in Emergency Message; Lists Items of Work

Governor Ely today sent to the Legislature a special message asking for a further appropriation of $106,440 to relieve unemployment. He says 450 men will be put to work at once if the appropriation is passed.

The Governor asks that the appropriation be regarded as an emergency measure and put ahead of the general appropriation bill, and also that it be taken out of current revenue.

ALL ITEMS IN BUDGET

All the items mentioned by the Governor in his message, with the exception of those for the Metropolitan District Commission, are recommendations contained in his budget submitted to the Legislature Jan. 28.

One of the items mentioned in the message, for which money is sought is equipment for a dairy and cowbarn at Worcester state hospital. This would cost $20,000.

CLERICAL AID LISTED.

Another item is one of $10,590 for statistical service in the department of labor and industry, which would give employment to 12 to 15 additional clerks.

PLANNED LAST SUMMER

In his alleged confession Schirru was reported to have said he had been an anarchist for years but began thinking of plans to assassinate Mussolini last summer while he was in Paris. He got the materials in Belgium to make the bombs.

Then, the police say, he came to Rome resolved to kill the premier and began plotting the best way to do it before he fell afoul of the authorities.

He is recovering from his self-inflicted wound and will be tried by a special tribunal under the Defense of the State Act which provides a death penalty for the crimes of which he is accused.

FOLEY WIDENS JURY PROBE

ly convicted, however, that the mysterious telephone call received by McMasters during the trial was in relation to his opposition to the Last Boston oil tanks, a community fight in which he was very active.

McMasters, who appeared at the prosecutor's office yesterday, accompanied by former Representative Thomas H. Niland of East Boston, McMasters told Dist. Atty. Foley he had been approached by an East Boston man who had given him an envelope containing a telephone number and requested him to call the number.

PHONE NUMBER TRACED

McMasters ignored it until Wednesday night, he said, when he heard a radio broadcast concerning rumors of alleged tampering with the jury. This decided him to relate the incident to the district attorney, he said.

Boston.

A complete investigation of the story revealed that the telephone number was that of a man trying to interest McMasters and Niland in taking sides with the proponents of an oil tank proposition in East

The East Boston man was questioned and stories of the incident led the district attorney to believe that a further checkup in the situation might bring new details to light.

Foley stated he had no definite evidence that any attempts were made to tamper with any of the jurors, but the many rumors which followed the dismissal of the jury Wednesday have induced him to conduct a complete probe.

It was revealed that private detectives, employed by Foley, had trailed three of the Garrett jurors to a Dover st. barber shop following their discharge.

SHOP WATCHED

This shop had been under surveillance since the opening of the trial, it is reported. Two of the jurors made their way to the shop immediately after the dismissal it was reported. The third also went there after stopping in a shop at Berkeley st., also reported as being watched.

A complete investigation of this development will be made by the district attorney's office, it is understood.

Garrett spent yesterday at the jail reading newspaper accounts of the ending of the trial. He was visited by Atty. Callahan and also by his father, George Garrett, of Portsmouth, N. H., and his wife. Garrett's stepmother. The elder Garrett said if bail were set he would furnish it if the amount were not excessive.

Mrs. Garrett was reported as being at her home and confined to bed on the verge of collapse.

Mrs. Garrett and Miss Hatch may be called into court by Dist. Atty. Foley today to have their bail increased. They were originally on bonds of $2500 but the wiping out of indictments against them has reduced this amount to $500 each.

GOOD LINKED IN POSTOFFICE LEASE PROBE

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP)—The late Secretary Good and 1928 Republican campaign tactics were linked with the disputed St. Paul commercial station lease today by Chairman Blaine, of the Senate committee investigating postoffice leases.

Questioning former Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett, Blaine asked if he did not know an effort was made to avert a grand jury investigation of the lease in August 1928 because it might blow up the campaign in the Northwest." He also said Good, then western campaign manager for Herbert Hoover, was in communication by telephone with L. K. Drill just before the latter became the new United States attorney on Aug. 1. Good spoke, he said, from President Coolidge's summer home in Wisconsin.

Bartlett tastified Good was in New's office when the latter ordered the lease executed. At New's direction, he said, a subordinate signed his, Bartlett's name to the lease.

Boston Postal Leases Are Sent to Capital in Probe

Acting Postmaster William E. Hurley, whose appointment as postmaster has been confirmed by the Senate, said today that requested data has been sent to Washington in connection with a probe of postal leases.

He said he had received no word regarding any visit of a committee to this city, and that any investigation will be handled from Washington.

Hurley said he knew nothing of a proposed investigation of the postoffice garage at 200 Ipswich st., Back Bay.

GEN. EDWARDS WEAKENING

The condition of Gen. Clarence R. Edwards was grave today, for he was gaining ground and appeared to be losing his courageous battle with death in Phillips house, Massachusetts General hospital.

He was weaker today than he was last night, when his doctors issued a discouraging report.

Although he slept a great deal during the night and was resting fairly comfortably today, this failed to supply him with strength, because he still was unable to take nourishment.

The customary forenoon bulletin was omitted, but the physicians were to make a thorough examination of the patient later today.

Col. John W. Hyatt, who spends all his time near the General, remains optimistic, but hospital attaches did not conceal the fact that the patient's condition was grave following several days with very little nourishment.

DOLE NAMED IN HALE TRIAL

The inquiry was directed at transactions between Hale and Gibson, president of the Gibson Land Co., involving Colorado lands.

Robert C. Murchie, defense counsel, devoted much time to questioning Gibson about mortgages on which it was alleged a bonus or discount had been paid.

The name of former Bank Commissioner Arthur E. Dole was brought into the case when Murchie asked what was meant by the remark, "possibly he will stop at Lawrence, Neb., as this is on the main line," contained in a letter from Gibson to Hale.

"To whom did you refer?" asked Murchie.

"To Bank Commissioner Dole," was the reply.

"Did you learn if he had been out there?"

"No, I learned he hadn't."

King was suspended for conduct unbecoming an officer for alleged failure to properly investigate the store break. He is the second Medford policeman to be dropped in one week. William L. McCarthy was suspended and given punishment following a hearing, but the civil service board refused to permit reinstatement.

ried about the effect of the dole upon the public than they are about the effect of stopping the dole upon themselves.

They all realize that the dole has degenerated into a premium upon idleness, a bonus to non-producers.

Instead of paying the people to work, the policy has been inaugurated of paying them NOT to work.

And those of the population who work pay taxes to maintain a part of the population in idleness.

So taxes constantly increase in severity, and the number of those dependent upon the dole constantly increases and the plight of England constantly increases, and the cowardice of English statesmen constantly increases.

Lloyd George's present policy, however, is to substitute for the dole a program of EMPLOYMENT.

* * *

Certainly a policy of public employment in this country would prevent us from incurring the evils of the dole.

The policy of employment for the idle and needy on public works is Mr. Hoover's program, and it is a splendidly sound and effective program IF HE WOULD ONLY PUT IT INTO OPERATION.

For, although Mr. Hoover has a world-wide reputation as an executive, he seems since he became President of the United States to have developed a faculty for conversation instead of execution.

For a year Mr. Hoover has been talking not only about the duty of the federal government but of the state governments and of private enterprise to furnish employment.

But he has done nothing of sufficient consequence to accomplish that result.

Before Mr. Hoover went into the White House, and before the nation became involved in the present financial depression, Mr. Hoover's proclaimed policy was a magnificent series of public works, so coordinated that all sections of the country would be benefited by the program and all sections would harmoniously support the program.

And many of us were won to Mr. Hoover's support by his dramatic relation of that program and by the benefits to the nation we could foresee as the result of its accomplishment.

But the plan has never been accomplished. In fact it has never even been proposed in its completeness since Mr. Hoover sat safely in the presidential chair.

The impressive policies which inspired us to become supporters of Mr. Hoover have been forgotten or neglected, and instead have been substituted a lot of policies or prejudices of narrow scope and trivial importance.

* * *

PERHAPS the red tape of government is responsible for some of this lack of accomplishment on Mr. Hoover's part, but surely he need not add to the red tape of government by the appointment of so many time-consuming commissions, who not only accomplish nothing of value but REPORT nothing of value.

If Mr. Hoover would outline in adequate detail a plan of public works and public employment of sufficient magnitude to harmonize with the greatness of the country, and the greatness of the country's need, and would give some sufficient evidence of desire and intention to put this policy into immediate and effective operation, the people would be satisfied and the Senate would be satisfied, and the crying need of the country would be satisfied, and some definite start would be made toward not only the relief of distress but the restoration of prosperity.

If so many futile and dangerous methods of relieving the acute distress are being discussed, it is only because the president has not proposed his sound plan of government employment in sufficient magnitude, or advocated it with sufficient earnestness and sincerity, or executed any part of it with sufficient promptness and effectiveness.

MILLIONS FOR EMPLOYMENT BUT NOT ONE CENT FOR DOLE should be the American motto of an American government.

But, Mr. President, if we are not going to have the dole, LET US HAVE THE EMPLOYMENT.

Wilbur was speaking to a group of deaf persons.

Smiles gleamed on the faces of his hearers as Wilbur told them he didn't know exactly what he was saying to them—that was the interpreter's work—but that if anything wasn't right, to blame it on the transistor.

Lloyd George's Daughter Suffering From Chills

London, Feb. 6 (AP)—Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of Britain's Liberal leader and wartime Premier, probably will have to remain in bed for a day or so, until she has overcome an indisposition.

She is suffering from a chill. It is believed that she is a victim of the bad weather, which is blamed for a considerable increase in influenza in England the last few days. There has been a sharp upward trend in the mortality rate.

Eva La Gallienne Will Quit Stage for a Year

New York, Feb. 6—Miss Eva La Gallienne, for five years director of the Civic Repertory Theatre, has announced that at the end of the season, May 16, she will take a year's rest. The theater will be closed until September, 1932.

Miss La Gallienne plans to visit her country home in Connecticut and to tour Europe. Heavy work is given as the reason for her decision to take a rest.

It had been announced recently that she would take her company to Boston for a spring engagement, but this and all other dates are cancelled until fall of next year.

Dr. Work, although a physician and practicing his profession, attained fame in politics as a manager.

'FAKE BARON' DESERTS HIS BRIDE

Police Search for Girl Fugitive at Charlton, but She Eludes Pursuers

Charlton, Feb. 6—Unable to reach her parents by telephone or by mail and apparently forsaken by her "Baronet" husband, Barbara Buffum Bramwell early today walked out of a police trap which promised to result in her capture and return to the Worcester State Hospital, from which she escaped last December.

Acting on information that Barbara would positively be found in the Charleton summer camp, State Detective Edward J. McCarthy in company with several state troopers descended upon the camp early today, but when they arrived she was gone.

There was evidence that someone had been in the camp recently. It is owned by a friend of the missing bride.

"BARON" NOT TO RETURN

That the "baron" husband, William Bramwell, a former steamship steward, whose hasty arrival for the wedding in Webster under escort of four state troopers led to the revelation of the marriage hoax, has no intention of returning here to fight against placing his bride in the Worcester State Hospital was revealed by Detective McCarthy.

According to McCarthy, James C. Buffum, father of the missing girl, a Webster banker, has received a letter from Bramwell, in England, in which he said he did not plan to return to Oxford. In the letter he gave fear of publicity as his reason for not wishing to return to Oxford.

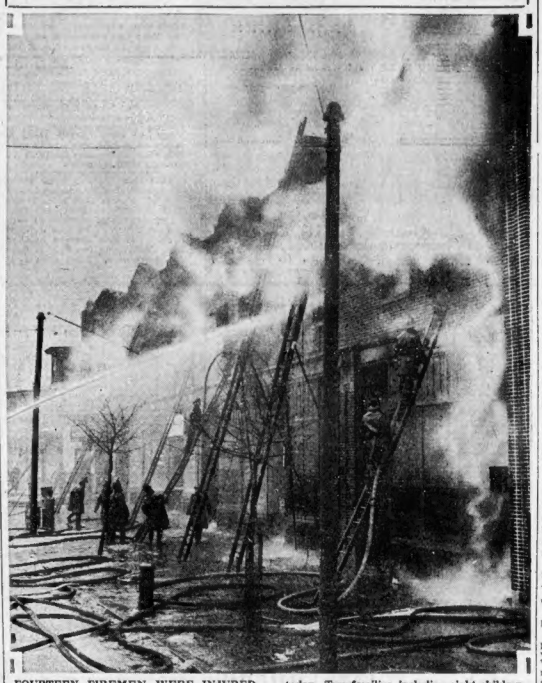
FATHER TO AID HER

He intimated in the letter that if Barbara were successful in reaching England he would be happy to join her.

State Detective McCarthy said he was positive the girl had been unable to get in communication with either her father or mother since she leaped out of a Worcester State Hospital window.

Her father reiterated his assertion to the police today that he would make every effort to keep the girl out of the hospital if she were found.

Flames Play Sorry Tragedy in Theater



FOURTEEN FIREMEN WERE INJURED, 12 slightly by falling on icy sidewalks and two cut by falling glass, in fighting three-alarm blaze in the Orient Gardens Theater block in Bennington st., East Boston, early today. Two families, including eight children, were driven from a dwelling next door. Photo shows firemen battling the flames, which swept through the theater, three stores, bowling alleys and offices. (Staff photo.)

FIREMEN OF 4 TOWNS JOIN IN BATTLE

The old Glen Hotel in Weston, famous years ago as a gathering place for the sporting fraternity and sleighing parties, and lately occupied by William S. Jennings and William S. Sellars, was partly destroyed by fire today.

The building, located on Glen rd., on what is known as the Jennings estate, adjoined a group of farm buildings which were destroyed by fire less than a month ago. The cause of today's fire, like the one a month ago, could not be determined by Weston fire officials.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

According to State police, the fire started in the rear of the building on the first floor, and before it was discovered by Stephen Sellars, the only person at home at the time, it had worked its way through the walls to the roof.

When Sellars discovered the fire he was trapped on the second floor. Calling to a pedestrian, he directed him to get a rope in the barn at the rear of the building and throw it to him so he might escape.

He had just tied the rope to a bed and was preparing to escape when firemen arrived.

OTHER TOWNS AID.

They raised a ladder and he made his way to the ground.

When the first pieces of fire apparatus arrived on the scene flames were leaping from every window. When it was feared that the fire might spread a general alarm was ordered sounded, calling aid from Wellesley, Newton and Waltham.

Considerable delay in the arrival of the firemen resulted when the first call for the fire was sent into Wellesley fire headquarters, making it necessary to relay the call back to Weston.

MRS. DUDLEY FIELD MALONE AND SON DUDLEY

Smith, 55 Tuttle st., Dorchester, insists that her boy Weston Arthur—as many days old as 1931 is—was born 20 seconds after the new year got a start. Hospital records say—CHECK and DOUBLE CHECK on Mrs. Smith's statement. So to her goes the record of being Uncle Sam's first 1931 mother. This honor had been claimed by Mrs. Dudley Field Malone, wife of the well known New York lawyer. The birth of Dudley Junior is set at one minute after start of 1931. BUTLER TRIAL ON AIR BANNED

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP)—Energetic efforts by one of the large broadcasting groups to obtain permission for putting the Butler court-martial on the air have met with a cold turndown at the Navy Department.

Incidentally friends of Gen. Butler today computed that if the court-martial resulted in his dismissal from the service, Butler's remarks about Premier Mussolini of Italy will have cost him just about $100,000.

Gen. Butler's base pay is $8000 a year. He is 49 years old, having served 32 years in the marine corps. A marine officer of Butler's rank is eligible for retirement on request after 30 years' service. His retired pay would be $6000 a year.

If he resigned with the expectation of living to the age of 70, he would receive $120,000 for the 20 years. Dismissal from the service would prevent his receiving retired pay.

They then proceeded to the presidential palace.

They had a glass of champagne with the President, then they strolled out on the patio.

In the afternoon the Prince reviewed the West Indian boy scouts and war veterans at the American Legation. The brothers had lunch there and then went out to play golf.

DR. WILSON FOR WINE GRAPE BAN

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP)—Amendment of the Volstead act to prevent trade in grape products that may be turned into wine was advocated today by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Senator Tydings, (D), Maryland, an opponent of prohibition, read to the Senate a letter from Wilson agreeing the sale of some grape products violated the spirit of the prohibition act.

Wilson said any one who contended this trade had the "passive consent of the dry organizations is in error."

Tydings said it is now "perfectly legal to manufacture 20 per cent wine in the home but illegal to make beer or gin.

"We either should permit all beverages to be made in the home as we now permit wine or we should stop all manufacturing in the home."

The Marylander quoted figures from Prohibition Commissioner Woodcock showing 678,000,000 gallons of 12 per cent wine were produced in the last five years, as compared with 229,000,000 in the five years preceding prohibition.

STOCK CRASHES CAUSE SUICIDE

Washington, Feb. 6 (INS)—Testimony that one life insurance company had paid 2191 suicide claims in the last four years was given a Senate judiciary sub-committee today at a hearing on the Heflin bill to prohibit marginal trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

A. S. Brown, Jr., of Boston, writer on construction projects, gave the data, saying the insurance company reports "indicated it was the big fellows who committed suicide."

Brown said "organized short selling" on the stock exchange was the "greatest curse of all" and recommended restrictive legislation.

A Worcester (Mass.) insurance firm, he added, had paid 12 suicide claims, two of which were for $50,000 each. He attributed all 12 to stock market losses.

Brown also said a canvass of architects showed over $300,000,000 in building operations had been "held up" in New England the last few years due to "fear and uncertainty" of stock market impulses.

Airplane Wins Race to Wife's Deathbed

Ottawa, Feb. 6 (AP)—Reading a paper before the engineering institute in Montreal, last night, Dr. George S. Hume was notified that his wife, long ill, was dying here. He handed his paper to a fellow member to finish reading, chartered an airplane, and reached Mrs. Hume's bedside two hours before she died. Mrs. Hume, a native of New Haven, Ct., was the daughter of Prof. F. W. Pierce, of Pennsylvania State College.

New York, Feb. 6 (AP)—Opposition to any form of a retail sales tax was expressed formally in a resolution of the National Retail Drygoods Association today.

SOMETHING WRONG somewhere here and if Kathleen Key, film actress, keeps her word and brings suit against Buster Keaton, the world is going to find out just what it is. She all but demolished Buster Keaton's dressing room in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio and inflicted considerable damage on Buster before police rescued him. Buster says it was all about a little money matter, Kathleen says "Ask Keaton," and Buster's wife, the former Natalie Talmadge, says nothing—as yet.

MALONE BABY THREATENED

New York, Feb. 6—A note threatening the month-old baby of Dudley Field Malone, noted attorney, with the fate of Rose Yasso, 10, who vanished near her Brooklyn home last Sunday and since has been hunted by 135 detectives, has been received by Rose's parents.

The letter was signed "Ace of Spades" and inclosed with it was a brand new ace of spades, which in gypsy fortune telling lore is the symbol of death.

While Capt. George Bishop of the Brooklyn detective division who is directing the search for the missing child, believes the letter is the work of a crank, he notified Inspector Sullivan of Manhattan of the threat against the Malone child.

Malone and his wife and baby live on lower Park ave. At the same time, Capt. Bishop is studying the letter and playing card for some clue in the handwriting or finger prints which might furnish a lead toward the solution of the mystery of the Yasso child's disappearance.

CLERK STEALS $207,000

New York, Feb. 6 (AP)—Charles F. Pierce, 27-year-old employe of the National City Bank, was arrested today and charged with the theft of $207,000 in negotiable securities from the bank.

The district attorney said all but $9000 of the securities had been recovered. Pierce was employed in the bank's customers' securities department in Wall Street. He is married and has one child.

The district attorney said Pierce, who had obtained a month's leave of absence because of ill health, had gone to Havana to try out a "system" which a friend had given him for winning money on horse races.

QUAKE LOSS IS 125 MILLIONS

Wellington, Feb. 6 (INS)—Damage caused by a series of earthquakes which destroyed Napier and Hastings, two cities in the Hawke Bay region of North Island, was estimated today at $125,000,000. Estimates as to the number of dead still range from 700 to 1000.

Several persons have been rescued from the ruins of their houses after having been buried for two days. Thousands of destitute residents have been evacuated from the two cities to Auckland, Wellington and other localities.

Martial law is still in effect in both Napier and Hastings. As minor quakes still continue it is feared that more crumbling walls might cause further casualties.

Geologists are of the opinion that the quakes are caused by a subsidence of the sea floor east of New Zealand.

LIQUOR EXPOSE PUT IN RECORD

Washington, Feb. 6 (US)—Senator Tydings (D.) of Maryland has inserted in the Congressional Record the expose of the Washington Herald and the Hearst papers of the 1550 known death toll under "shotgun enforcement" of prohibition.

In presenting the article by Cole E. Morgan of Universal Service, who spent months in the compilation of the death list, the anti-prohibition leader said he was shocked at the increasing death rate from alcoholism and the number of arrests for drunkenness in the national capital.

During a brief colloquy with Senator Smoot (R.) of Utah, Tydings said the farcical enforcement of prohibition was demonstrated at the Army and Navy football game in Baltimore in 1926, when more than 1000 liquor flasks were found in the Stadium after the game.

The Old Story

Paying a woman's penalty—time after time

In the year of 1931 there should be no monthly martyrs to pain. Some women still think they must suffer—they haven't heard of Midol—or can't believe that it has solved their problem.

* * *

Did you know that five to seven minutes after swallowing a tiny tablet you can be yourself—can be comfortable—can go about without feeling a single further twinge of muscular pain?

Your regular periods need not be painful—they are not painful to those who know of Midol. These wonderful tablets make Nature's process a mere incident. No pain, not even discomfort when you have learned to depend on Midol, as women who used to have the hardest time have found. It is not a narcotic, does not interfere with the process, but does stop the pain; relieves headaches, too; neuralgia, etc. Every drugstore has Midol.

CURLEYS STILL LEAD FOR NAME OF TUNNEL

The "Curley Tunnel" stock rolled higher today in the poll for a name of the new harbor tunnel with the memory of his son still close behind.

But nearly 100 different designations are in the desk of the Tunnel Editor, some with one vote and others with two, three, four and five.

Former Governor Allen, Marshal Foch, the late President Roosevelt, Lincoln, Liberty and scores of others are recorded in that group.

Everyone seems to have a different idea with the exception of those who urge the honor on Mayor Curley and there are probably many more good ideas still to be had.

The "score" of the first 20 in the list of designations remained relatively the same in standing as yesterday's, with the votes on each increased, however.

Plowing Under Way Early

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 6 (AP)—State Commissioners of Agriculture reported today that plowing has started well and that good crops are in prospect in most sections of the south.

CAMPBELL IS TO REST ON RECORD

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 6 (AP)—Capt. Malcolm Campbell, who yesterday established a new world's automobile speed record of 248 miles an hour, announced today he would make no further trials in his Bluebird racing car before returning to England.

Campbell said last night he was not satisfied with his newly established record and intimated he might try to raise the record before returning to England. Today, however, he said he had abandoned such plans.

He still plans to drive his four-cylinder racing car, possibly today or tomorrow, with hopes of setting a new speed record for automobiles with piston displacement of less than 45 cubic inches.

He made trials in the tiny machine yesterday, but fell short of the record of 87 miles per hour. Whether or not Campbell will take the small car upon the beach today depends upon tide and coure conditions.

However, he must "respect the laws" governing newspaper publication.

DON'T TRIFLE WITH A COLD

Break It Up In a Jiffy With Something You KNOW Does the Job

THE thing to do with a cold is to break it up in a hurry—with something you know does the job; not to trifle with a lot of trick ideas and remedies. Colds are too dangerous to experiment with.

Get a box of Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon that miserable, aching feeling begins to go. The cold breaks up. The poisons are moved from your system. The world looks like an altogether different place.

Those results come because Hill's goes back to first principles by going to the seat of the trouble. It's not a new-fangled fancy idea but a tried and proved way that's made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy.

Hill's costs only a few cents. Use it for quick relief after everything else you've tried has failed.

INDIA RUM RIOT JAILS 300

Bombay, India, Feb. 6 (AP)—Three hundred Congress party volunteers, including the daughters of Ambalal Sarabhai, a leading mill owner, were arrested today at Ahmadabad for attempting to interfere with an auction sale of liquor licenses.

The volunteers were mobilized during the night to picket the auction but police ordered that no one approach. Some defied the order and the police arrested the lot.

Twenty-six Indian delegates to the round table conference which has just concluded at London arrived in India today and, in their first word to their countrymen, issued an appeal for acceptance of British offer of partial dominion status.

HER FIRST DAY on the new job at City Hall was a busy one for Miss Margaret Connolly, appointed to phone duties there just before Mayor Curley departed on vacation. She was discharged some time ago by the telephone company and there was a State House hearing over the case. She is an official of the Central Labor Union. (Staff photo.)

'FIRED' PHONE GIRL ON JOB

Miss Margaret I. Connolly of 343 Bowdoin st., Dorchester, secretary of Boston Central Labor Union, who was discharged by the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. because she signed a petition seeking lower telephone rates, took up her new duties today at City Hall as a switchboard operator. She was employed by Mayor Curley at a salary of $27 a week.

"I like it very much; everything is just fine," said Miss Connolly after she had begun work today.

Miss Connolly is working under Miss Katharine McManus, chief operator in City Hall. Eleven other operators constitute the remainder of the staff that handles calls at City Hall.

Strenuous efforts of leading labor officials failed to bring about Miss Connolly's reinstatement by the telephone company.

LEWIS LEARNS WHAT FAME IS

London, Feb. 6 (AP)—Life is not all beer and skittles even for the winner of the Nobel prize in literature, and Sinclair Lewis is just beginning to find it out.

"I used to get letters by the fistful," he said today, "but now I get them by the bushel. A lot of them want money, but some of them demand it. There was a gypsy in Austria sent me the mortgage on his old homestead and wanted me to pay it off.

"I wrote him a polite letter telling him I was poor too and what thanks did I get? He sent me five postal cards calling me all the names I ever heard and some new ones, and said he was praying every day that his mother's grave that some terrible disaster befall my wife and me."

Lewis shook his head and said he never would be able to understand people like that.

Lefty Grove Winner in Big Damage Suit

Philadelphia, Feb. 6—Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove, pitching ace of the Philadelphia Athletics, yesterday, won a $100,000 damage suit brought by E. Green Archer, Uniontown, Md., for the loss of an eye while on a hunting trip with Grove and others in Maryland in 1928.

Vanderbilt Buses Damaged by Fire

Middletown, R. I., Feb. 6 (INS)—A dozen motor buses were damaged and several employes injured today when fire swept the Short Line bus garage owned by Senator William H. Vanderbilt. The buses operate between Newport and Providence.

Yale Sage Raps 'Filth' in Modern Books; Lauds Songs

Augusta, Ga., Feb. 6 (AP)—Dr. William Lyon Phelps, the sage of Yale, took a sweet, backward glance to the days when legs were limbs and said never in history has literature "been so consistently filthy and rotten as it is today."

But, he added, the state of literature is partly offset by the purity of popular songs. These modern musical offerings never before were so clean and they were growing more puritanical and prudish all the time. The doctor did not find fault with them, as some were ungrammatical and some filled with "sweet, sentimental slush."

Lecturing to a large crowd at his winter home here, Prof. Phelps said today was an age of biography, but writers thereof were more prone to select a "victim" rather than a "subject."

"It is getting so," he said, "that a good man is afraid to die."

Leaving literature for fashions, the professor said:

"Every man craves to dress with the same brilliancy of color and novelty of design as women, but have sense and will power enough not to."

Minister Charges Hip Veils Were Worn at Coeds' Party

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 6 (AP)—When, where and what type of pajamas should adorn the co-ed figure was the subject of a controversy today between the Rev. K. Girard Lowe, young Presbyterian minister, and the girls of Southwestern Denominational College here.

The minister told the trustees Tuesday witnesses could be produced to prove co-eds had danced publicly in pajamas, "shorts that came just below the hips," and veils.

The co-eds defended themselves in detail, asserting the garments in question were beach pajamas and that no boys were present at their display.

Mr. Lowe said he wanted it understood he had said "some of them wore veils over the shorts."

Mrs. M. H. Townsend, dean of women, collected 126 written denials, issued a statement reprimanding the pastor and called the girls to meet today to draft a demand that he apologize publicly.

KONJOLA WHAT LADY NEEDED

"After My Experience, I Cannot Recommend This Medicine Too Highly," Says Boston Lady

Wherever Konjola, the new and different medicine, is known, there are men and women without number who gladly tell that they found in this medicine of 32 ingredients their first and only relief.

MRS. ANNIE GOODRICH

Konjola, a compound without alcohol, nerve-deadening drugs, or heart-depressing chemicals, attacks at their very source the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola cleanses and stimulates the ailing organs and restores strength and vigor to the entire system. Read what this master medicine did for Mrs. Annie Goodrich, 144 Broadway, Chelsea, Boston, and then determine to get all the facts about Konjola. Visit the Konjola man . . . ask questions . . . find out what Konjola has done, and then you be the judge. Here is what Mrs. Goodrich said to the Konjola Man, who is at Epstein's Drug store, Epstein's, Scollay Square, this city:

"Konjola did more for me than I ever dreamed any one medicine could do. For about four months I suffered dreadfully with rheumatic fever. My limbs were swollen until I was helpless and confined to bed. I was in great pain all the time, and my husband had to help me turn in bed. A druggist told my husband that he thought Konjola would help me. He brought home a bottle, and by the time I finished this first bottle I was out of bed. I continued using Konjola, and every bit of swelling and pain is gone. After my experience, I cannot recommend this medicine too highly."

Surely such an enthusiastic statement from a resident of Boston should be encouraging news for many sufferers.

The Konjola Man is at Epstein's Scollay Square Rexall Drug Co., Boston, where daily he is telling the public how Konjola works. Konjola is sold also by all leading druggists in Boston and vicinity.

COMPROMISE ON BONUS READY BY WEEK-END

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP)—The Senate has approved a resolution to prohibit government employes with salaries of $2000 or more from receiving disability allowances. The action came yesterday after Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, termed existing conditions in the veterans bureau a "widespread scandal," and named a long list of men drawing substantial sums from both sources.

PROSPECTS OF COMPROMISE

There seemed to be good prospects today that a compromise would be worked out by the end of this week on the many plans making more money from the adjusted compensation certificates available to World War veterans immediately.

Indications today were that something like $500,000,000 appropriation for making increased loans at low interest against the certificates would be offered.

Discussion in Congress of plans for aiding veterans has brought up a project, described frankly as "unpopular" by its supporters, to cut in half the disability allowances of ex-soldiers while they are in government hospitals.

CARE FOR FAMILIES

Hines advocated the cut in disability allowances during hospitalization as an incentive to the men to leave the government institutions as soon as they are cured.

Hines' plan for cutting disability allowances involved a 50 per cent cut in the maximum allowances, with provision that in the case of married men the half taken off would be paid the families. In no case would the allowance go below $20 a month.

CRITICS CLASH OVER RUBENS

New York, Feb. 6 (AP)—Around the heads of the "Holy Family," painted by Peter Paul Rubens, an art critics' tempest brewed today.

Announcement that Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Timken, of Canton, O., had purchased the "original" from a New York dealer for presentation to the Fine Arts Gallery of San Diego, Cal., started the argument.

Joseph Breck, acting director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, contends that the "Holy Family" hanging in the museum is the only such work of Rubens.

Dr. William R. Valentiner, director of the Detroit Museum of Art, claims that the Timken canvas is the original and that the one in the Metropolitan was painted in Ruben's workshop by a pupil.

Rumford Opens Its Winter Carnival

The program today and tomorrow listed ski jumping, the Maine Interscholastic winter sports meet, a 15-mile snowshoe marathon and the coronation of a carnival queen.

Brockton Oil Case Again Postponed

Brockton, Feb. 6—Failure of the government to complete a list of specifications resulted in another postponement today in the trial of 12 oil companies and eight individuals charged with conspiracy to destroy the business of a competitor.

Dudley P. Ranney, special attorney for the district attorney's office, was given until Monday to produce specifications requested by the defense.

How to Reach the Lindbergh Home

Paris, Feb. 6 (AP)—Frenchmen should know how to find their way to the home of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh. Andre Maurois, novelist, has enlightened them.

"The Lindberghs," he said, "inhabit a small house in the country two hours from New York. Mrs. Lindbergh invited us to tea one day. In giving directions she said: 'You have but to follow the road and stop at a villa near which you will find an airplane.'

Bootleg Fined $200 Day He Became Cop

Chicago, Feb. 6 (AP)—How a "rookie" policeman became a full-fledged patrolman, and paid a fine of $200 as a liquor law violator all in the same day was learned today. The policeman is Benjamin Bernacchi, 22, formerly a bartender in a raided saloon. When he came into court, resplendent in his new uniform, he explained that he had been attending the graduating exercises at the police school. He pleaded guilty.

Girl, Losing Sight, Burns Self to Death

Montreal, Feb. 6 (AP)—Depressed because of failing sight, Rose Helene La Perle, 19, wrapped herself in oil-soaked clothing and papers and touched a match to them. She died before physicians arrived.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

FAST OVERSEAS AIR LINE SEEN

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP)—Figures show the dirigible can increase the speed of trans-oceanic travel as much as did the steamship were laid before the Senate commerce committee today by officials of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Co.

P. W. Litchfield, president of the Akron, Ohio, Co., said, however, it would not be possible to establish a regular trans-oceanic service without airmail contracts.

He appeared in support of the McNary bill to provide for the "establishment and development of American air-transport overseas."

"Pioneer work," he said, "has so demonstrated the feasibility of this type of transportation that we are willing to build 85,000,000 ships for this service, without risk or obligation to the government."

J. C. Hunsaker, vice-president, outlined plans for a ship to carry 10,000 pounds of mail in addition to 80 passengers, a crew of 50, and a pay load of freight. He submitted figures showing the possibility of a 2½-day service between Paris and New York.

Have a Little Dimple Any Old Place

They Are Portable Now and May Be Worn at a Different Spot Each Day

Chicago, Feb. 6 (AP)—Portable dimples that can be changed from place to place to suit the changing styles are now available. This became known at a convention of cosmeticians, one of whom said:

"A natural dimple is of course a thing of beauty, but it may be so placed as to be valueless. Changing styles, for example, may reveal a natural dimple one season and completely hide it the next. With the new synthetic dimple the owner can meet all style changes without fear. It can be placed on the cheek, arm, shoulder or chin if preferred."

MENCKEN IS HIT IN ARKANSAS

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 6 (AP)—Arkansas resents the satirical shafts of Henry L. Mencken, but admits he has a way with words.

Mencken was condemned in a resolution adopted by the House of Representatives today for a recent article on Arkansas. The resolution, however, said private it to his literary ability.

The article entitled "Famine," appeared Jan. 19, and in it, Mencken said the Red Cross might feed Arkansans this year but they would be no better off next year.

The resolution asserted Mencken "has tried for years to make Arkansas the butt of coarse ridicule and diatribe."

Baltimore, Feb. 6 (AP)—H. L. Mencken answered the criticism in one sentence:

"My only defense is that I didn't make Arkansas the butt of ridicule—God did it."

Old Soldier Demands Butler Trial Be Public

Editor Boston American:

I have been a reader of The Boston American for the last 15 years and enjoy the straight from the shoulder way the Boston American champions the cause and the right of what is right.

One question I would like to ask is, Why was the United States in such a hurry to apologize to the Italian Government and Mussolini, when the United States Government and all concerned were not sure whether an apology was necessary?

As it appears so far, by the reports and what the Boston American can confirm of it, Mussolini did actually run over a 4-year-old girl and she died the next day and further, two witnesses of this affair were spirited away. Why?

To my understanding, the United States Government should not have made an apology until the facts warranted same, and as an American citizen for 48 years, I demand that the hearing on the charges against Gen. Butler must be public, as long as the senders or givers of the apology did same in the name of American citizens and public.

Most "Free Speech" Nothing but "Hot Air," He Says

Editor Boston American:

Some people in Boston are clamoring for more free speech. The recent hearing before the legislative committee on legal affairs heard the twang of many orators upon that matter. There is a vital difference between free speech and abuse of the government and other cherished institutions.

Boston Common rings with free speech often during the mild weather when open air meetings are held there.

I have had my fill of free speech on this historic spot. Most of it is a lot of hot air that bellows out of some conceited would-be orator.

Boston Common stands for free speech. But I am against a lot of overheated brains that long to sputter off is a speech a series of freak ideas that come into the mind. Let us have sensible free speech on Boston Common.

Women Need Revival, Ma Sunday Declares

Editor Boston American:

"Ma" Sunday, wife of Billy Sunday, says women need religious revival in Greater Boston. Billy Sunday will be here in Boston February 17, holding forth in Tremont Temple.

The idea that women need revival is absurd. Who are regularly attending church services on Sundays in Boston? Who does all the hard work in keeping down expenses in churches? Who keeps the young people interested in all sorts of ventures in churches?

Who cleans the kitchen in many churches after the men have had an oyster supper there all by themselves?

Who cleans the linen cottas for the boy choirs of churches? Who helps more generously to pay the ministers' salary by work and pledges of money?

Who attends services in church all summer long while the men play golf on Sundays?

There is only one answer to these questions, Women. Pshaw! It's the men who need revival tents, not the women.

Plucking Thistles and Planting Flowers

Editor Boston American:

Let's all say next Thursday, February 12, the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, martyred President of the United States, what he said often while alive when conditions were against him:

"I have always plucked a thistle and planted a flower when I thought a flower would grow."

These are words to be remembered and said after the style of Dr. Coue of France, yes, saying them constantly so that they will take effect and switch our minds out of the well beaten track.

Wickersham Report in Book of Proverbs

Editor Boston American:

The Wickersham report in a condensed form can be seen in the following chapters in the Book of Proverbs: Chapter 20, verse 1; chapter 23, verses 20, 29, 30, 31, 32; chapter 31, verses, 6, 7.

Evidently the commission was influenced by reading the same.

Shorter Hours and High Wages as Means to Prosperity

Editor Boston American:

How can we get back prosperity? Permanent prosperity can only come when consumption can be made to keep pace with production. The present hours of labor in all industry bring a greater production than under present conditions can be marketed and consumed. The greatest stabilizing influence that can be found would be lowering the hours of labor and upholding high wages on a basis that would get all unemployed to work.

This would increase the power of consumption and would build up home markets. Vast sums are spent seeking foreign markets for our products, and the opportunities to sell many billions of dollars worth at home are lost sight of.

If 5,000,000 jobless were put to work, at an average wage of $25 per week their earnings would reach the huge sum of $65,000,000,000 for one year.

Labor is dependent on capital, and capital on labor, and if either does wishes to measure up to a high standard of manhood and be properly recognized as being intelligent, it is high time that they get together and work in harmony with one another.

States Observe Lincoln's Birthday

Editor Boston American:

Lincoln's Birthday, Feb. 12, is at a legal holiday in Massachusetts. It is a holiday in 21 states and Alaska. Tennessee is the only former Confederate state where this birthday is a legal holiday.

Washington's Birthday is a legal holiday in every state and territory of the Union. A. E. G.

Society Leaders Applaud Opera Stars in 'Otello'

"OTELLO" WAS THE OFFERING last evening by the Chicago Civic Opera Co. and, if comparisons may be made, it was the most convincing so far given. If the music is not so familiar, the actors make the play so comprehensive it is forgotten. There were no tedious spots, the drama unfolded smoothly and with tremendous climax. Claudia Muzio was perfect in the role of Desdemona—lovely to behold, her sweet tones tearing at the heartstrings; Charles Marshall was a magnificent Otello and Vanni-Marcoux drew down tumultuous applause as the villian, Iago.

AS THE VAST CROWD surged through the foyers many of the same faces, seen night after night, were observed with curried step and eager eyes. So one would think that opera were dying to view this scene—in Boston it seems more vitally alive than for many, many seasons. It is a pity it cannot remain for a longer time. Mr. E. P. Brown, one of the patrons of the opera association, arrived with Mrs. Brown and their daughter, Mrs. Samuel Warren was escorted by her older daughter, Miss Helen, a striking looking brunette. Quite a group from the North Shore attended, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sears, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin F. Sortwell, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Proctor and others.

MISS MARY BUTTERICK, who has recently announced her engagement to John Amory, looked fetching in blue lace and Ethel Grew was distinctive in black. Catherine Hurd was attired in black with diamante yoke, Alice Newell in pink chiffon, sparkling with crystal, Mrs. T. Cherry Collens very chic in black and white satin and Grace Cushing was attractive in green satin. Faith Garrison's auburn tresses were enhanced by bright light blue lace and Mrs. Dudley Pickman was vivacious in black velvet. We also glimpsed Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Holmes in the large crowd. Mary Garden sings tomorrow in "Camille," a French opera.

THE LATEST BIT OF GOSSIP is that Miss Ruth Wellington of Chestnut Hill and Paul Shaw, Harvard '24, will soon announce to the world that they are "two minds with but a single thought" to be married.

AND IT IS WHISPERED that the Clarence Dillons, meaning young Dillon and Miss Phyllis Ellsworth, will not wait until June for their nuptials, but will be wed in March, waiting for their honeymoon until Mr. Dillon graduates in June and then taking an extended trip to Europe.

Elizabeth Mason to Make Debut at Dance on Tuesday

A SMALL DANCE AT THE Chilton Club on Monday, February 9, will introduce Miss Elisabeth Phillips Mason, debutante daughter of Mrs. Herbert W. Mason of Spruce ct., Beacon Hill. Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Mason of Exeter st. will give the party for their niece, who is a member of the Vincent Club and Junior League. Forrester (Tim) Clark heads the usher list and the others are Charles Mason, Jr., George O. Clarke, 2d, Eben Whitman, Jr., Alvah Crocker, 2d, William Patten, Charles Devens, Charles Stockton, Percy Musgrave, Jr., Joseph W. Woods and W. Stuart Forbes, Jr.

IT IS QUITE THE SMART thing now to be invited to Mrs. Robert Bradley's for an afternoon of bridge, to play with no less a personage than Mr. Sweet, the well-known contract-bridge authority. Mr. Sweet will lend his presence to Mrs. Bradley's contract afternoons through February.

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD COONLEY, who have lived on their charming estate on Brush Hill rd., Milton, have come into town for an indefinite stay, having taken a duplex apartment at 86 Pinckney st., Beacon Hill.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES DEXTER HARRIS, (Posy Jackson), and Mr. and Mrs. Van Lennup of Brattle st., Cambridge, now that mid-years are over, have gone to Poland for the winter sports.

Ira M. Hamilburgs Return to Boston From Panama Tour

MR. AND MRS. IRA M. HAMILBURG have returned from a honeymoon cruise to Panama and Cuba, and have taken up their residence at their home, 58 Commonwealth av. Mrs. Hamilburg was Miss Ethel Stevens and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Stevens of Brookline.

MRS. JOHN NICHOLAS BROWN is entertaining this evening at a dinner a number of friends in honor of Miss Betty Cram, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Adams Cram of Mt. Vernon st.

THIS EVENING IS THE ANNUAL artists' costume ball at the Boston Art Club and the setting is "The Jungle." Guests will enter through the leaves of the jungle book and must be attired in costume suggesting the tropics.

MRS. FRANCIS GRAY, MRS. RICHARD M. RUSSELL and Mrs. Louis Curtis, Jr., are arranging a Valentine party for the young children at the Hotel Somerset next Tuesday. About a hundred children will be entertained. It will be in connection with the usual dancing class this afternoon.

Popular Among Sub-Debs

Child Legislation Topic of Meeting of District Conference

Arrangements have been completed by Mrs. William J. MacDonald, sixth district director; Mrs. Frederic E. Judd, legislative chairman; Mrs. Edith Washburn Clarke, president; for a program on "Child Legislation" to be given at the sixth district conference, Tuesday, March 3, at 10:30 a. m., at the Hotel Statler, as guests of the Women's auxiliary, Angell Memorial Hospital.

Mothercraft chairmen of Massachusetts clubs, affiliated with the State Federation of Women's Clubs, are urged to bring to the attention of school superintendents the prize essay contest, of which Mrs. C. R. Elder, 39 Amity st., is in charge.

Before leaving for the Hotel Clarendon, Daytona Beach, Fla., where, with Mr. Kimball and Helen May, Mrs. May Bliss Dickinson Kimball is to spend six weeks, the mothercraft specialist of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the founder and chairman of the department in the State Federation, issued this statement:

"Mothercraft makes a big appeal, not only because it teaches the physical care of babies and young children, but because it emphasizes the right habits of mind and the conditions of environment which are essential to the upbuilding of a normal, well rounded personality."

Vivid Colors Brighten Winter Mode

By ANN ARDEN

ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WLEX every Tuesday and Thursday at 10:30 a. m.

FROCKS IN bright colors seem to fit into the scheme of things these chilly winter evenings—they are most appropriate and becoming, especially to the younger set. They are enhanced by graceful lines, and the versatile little jacket.

* * *

LIPSTICK red crepe fashions the sub-deb costume pictured—a Sunday night frock which may become an evening gown by doffing the jacket. The skirt is circular from interlacing V sections, the neck repeats the V line, a medium decolletage, draped center front. The belt of the material is held with buckle of brilliants. The little jacket has a rippling peplum, held by belt which ties in front. The short sleeves are edged in brown fur. The slippers are of silver brocade, and the necklace of large pearls.

* * *

THE PEPLUM has appeared in so many guises, longer on one side than the other, flaring gracefully, with a cutaway effect in the front, etc., that you may have wondered whether there could be any new version of this popular style. But the ingenuity of Paris has discovered yet another way of wearing this fashion. The peplum shrinks to a ruffle on a recent importation. At the higher waistline, the flared ruffle that is glorified by the title of peplum emphasizes the youthful lines of the costume.

* * *

SELDOM does a fashion repeat in its exact form for a second season. The jacket frock, for instance, too practical and becoming to be ostracised so soon, appears again for spring, but with an attractive alteration. When the frock is printed the jacket very frequently is of a plain color according one of the colors in the print. Sometimes there are two wearable sides to it, one plain and one printed.

* * *

AT HOME the Sunday evening frock has an entirely different accent from that which it adopts for "stepping out." This frock, by the changing of an accessory or two, may be as varied as the occasions for which it is appropriate.

* * *

OF COURSE, the Sunday evening frock may frequently break over and go forth on another evening. Say, a Wednesday or Thursday evening at the theater, with a bit of dancing afterward. For such occasions, long gloves are a necessity for the short-sleeved frock. They may be in the same dark color as the dress or in contrasting shade.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WLEX.

Elective Board of Auburn Club Head Minstrel Success

A successful minstrel show was produced by the Auburn Woman's Club under the auspices of the elective board of the club. Mrs. Carl A. Drury, chairman and club members were of the cast. Given as a benefit for the crisis and the drouth relief fund of the American Red Cross, especially the Auburn branch quota, the performance was an unprecedented success.

These women helped to make it so: Mrs. Eunice J. Hallowell, Miss Alice Gilson, Mrs. William B. Leland, Mrs. Kenneth E. Alden, Mrs. James E. Mills, Mrs. Henry Granger, Mrs. Percy E. Collins, Mrs. William I. Blackwell, Mrs. Ernest Sykes, Mrs. Howard L. Johnson, Mrs. George M. Duvall, Mrs. Harold Talbot, Mrs. Ruth B. Leland, Mrs. Daniel Love, Mrs. Denton Smith, Mrs. Frank H. Allen, Mrs. Clarence M. Harris, Mrs. Gustaf Aldrin, Mrs. Iver Harison, Mrs. Percy E. Collins, Mrs. Clifford Allen, Mrs. Harry J. Winters, Mrs. Eugene C. Parsons.

Frederick W. Cook, secretary of the Commonwealth, and Mrs. Cook, head the list of guests invited to the monthly luncheon-meeting of the Professional Women's Club of Boston, to be held at the Hotel Statler, Feb. 17. Mrs. Mabel Mann Jordan, president, will introduce the guests of honor among whom will be Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman, Rudolph Fried of New York; Mrs. Marion Boyd Allen, Norwood D. Vaughan, Miss Anita Sturgis, Roy G. Greene, Henry H. Kitson, Mrs. Theo Ruggles Kitson, Harrison Crofford and artists from the down-town theatres.

Mrs. Edith Noyes Greene, program chairman, will present Miss Mildred Brookings, soprano, and Miss Elva R. Boydan, contralto, in a series of vocal selections, and a violin, cello and piano trio, with Mrs. Olive Turner, composer, at the piano.

Kotex deodorizes

. . . one of the many reasons you should demand this sanitary pad

DAINTY women appreciate the fact that Kotex deodorizes thoroughly. They like, too, the way it is shaped to fit inconspicuously and the soothing, lasting softness that differentiates Kotex from ordinary sanitary pads.

You will feel secure, safe—once you adopt this modern protection. Kotex is highly absorbent—five times more than surgical cotton. And it absorbs over a larger area, gives you greater protection.

You can wear it on either side, with no fear of embarrassment, with the very same efficiency.

Our leading hospitals, taking the very greatest precautions in all sanitary measures, insist upon Kotex for their women patients. Try Kotex—for your health's sake. It is, of course, disposable.

PORT OF BOSTON

BY JAMES J. DELANEY

Reaction of steamship owners and operators on the assessing of a charge for wharfage and all freight handled at the Army Base was sent with the announcement that European, Far East and Australian ships which have used the facilities there have changed their docking and berthing places.

The Bay State Shipping Co., lessees of the Army Base from the United States Shipping Board placed a wharfage charge on all freight received or dispatched at the Army Base whether by rail or truck. No charge had been made upon freight received or dispatched by rail at the Army Base since the start of its operation under lease.

Opposition to the charges was expressed at a meeting of port officials held under the auspices of the Maritime Association of the Chamber of Commerce committee on port facilities.

Transatlantic services represented at the meeting declared that they would not use the facilities at the Army Base even if the present charge is withdrawn, officials of that company announced. This includes the Oriole Line, which runs between Boston and Liverpool. They have moved their docking place from the Army Base to the Hoosac Tunnel Docks, Charlestown.

The American Diamond Line also announced that they will take their ships to Mystic Docks at Pier 46.

FLEET FLAGSHIP

Flagship of the Canadian National Steamships fleet, the C. N. S. Lady Nelson, making the Boston to West Indies cruise, is due late this afternoon at Commonwealth Pier where she will leave 200 passengers for Boston. This will mark the 14th call of the line since they inaugurated their service last December.

SUBSTITUTE OSSINING

The Shipping Board steamer Ossining has been substituted for the steamer Nathar, of the Yankee Line, which was scheduled to arrive here tomorrow to load cargo for Hamburg and Bremen. The Nathar grounded on a mud bank at Philadelphia and will be unable to make the sailing. The Ossining will come to Boston Feb 11 and sail Feb 14 in charge of Capt. Eugene S McKown, who will shift over with his crew from the Natirar to the Ossining.

PAGE, SHAW MAN GETS 2 YEARS

An echo of the Page & Shaw case was heard in superior criminal court today when John W. Sinclair pleaded guilty to two larceny indictments and was sentenced to two years in the House of Correction. Brought here after completing a sentence in Schenectady, N. Y., Sinclair received one year for the larceny of $2000 from Frank J Franz, who was induced to exchange valuable securities for Page & Shaw stock. The second year was imposed for the larceny of $1000 from Mrs. Lana Les Desnauries, who bought stock in the Dalton Construction Co., of which Sinclair was president.

Husbandless Wives Try to 'Recover' Lost Mates

New York, Feb 6 (AP)—A thousand matrons organized here to abolish a ban that leaves them husbandless though married

The women, 21 to 30 years old, migrated here from Europe, prospered and became citizens. Then they married sweethearts in their native lands

When the husbands tried to come to the United States with their brides, they found themselves barred by a federal ruling cutting down immigration visas during the employment crisis.

The women called their organization the "citizen wives" and announced plans to extend it to other cities, with the view of asking President Hoover for aid.

COLD WAVE ON WAY TO BOSTON

A promised shifting of the wind from the southwest to the northwest will end the warm wave which has hovered over Boston for the past 24 hours.

In his official announcement today the weather man promised that Saturday would be much colder and it was possible a storm, at present centered over Texas, might move north and give New England on Sunday.

At 9 o'clock this morning a reading of 29 degrees was reported, which was 15 degrees warmer than at the same time yesterday.

What $16,000 buys in The American Weekly

A full page in color nearly three times as big as any other magazine page in the world . . . 5,500,000 families at a cost of less than ⅓ cent per family . . . The attention of the entire family instead of a single buying factor.

Naturally, you would like to know how this price is justified, and we in turn welcome the opportunity of selling The American Weekly to a banker.

For, after all, you are interested in value, and value is our stock in trade.

The American Weekly has the highest advertising page rate in the world because it has almost double the circulation of its nearest competitor in the publishing field.

Every Sunday morning this great magazine enters 5,500,000 homes without a single duplication at a cost of less than ⅓ cent per home.

That, Mr. Banker, is the lowest cost per home reached, offered by any magazine on the publishing counter today.

The American Weekly gives ideal national coverage, reaching one out of four families in the entire United States, and at the same time it concentrates its greatest strength in the richest markets, where the people live who have the funds to buy.

As you are well aware, all states are not commercially equal in value.

In twenty-four states and the District of Columbia, for instance, are filed 83.2% of all the income tax returns of the country. Your savings bank statistics will show you that in these states is deposited 89% of all our money.

Statistics on national markets will show you also that in these same states there are:

18,187,477 or 69.6% of the total families
17,207,463 or 74.4% of the total passenger cars
16,687,000 or 82.9% of the total homes electrically wired
46,375,890 or 88% of the total savings bank depositors
5,265 or 68.1% of the total department stores
35,032 or 70.8% of the total drug stores
204,928 or 74.5% of the total grocery and delicatessen stores
27,750 or 65.1% of the total furniture stores
24,973 or 79.6% of the total shoe stores

AND INTO THESE STATES THE AMERICAN WEEKLY POURS 86.7% OF ITS CIRCULATION.

That means plenty of room to tell the advertising story and more than twice the attention value.

5,500,000 families reached at a cost of less than ⅓ cent per family!

Maskell Is Calm as Detector Works

CHAPTER 18

What the Detector Showed

"WHAT ARE you most ashamed of in your life?" repeated Thatcher Colt. Experiment will prove that this question will bring to pause the busy thoughts of any human being, even if he is not accused of crime.

"Of nothing," declared Doctor Maskell, finally. But his voice was less confident than before and we knew from the lie detector that he was laboring under great excitement.

"Come, Doctor," urged Thatcher Colt patiently. "We are all ashamed of something."

"No."

"Are you ashamed of something in connection with the house on Peddler's Road?"

Again the extraordinary jiggle of the moving tape, showed that the Commissioner had struck a emotional system

"No," he replied

Again the extraordinary jiggle of emotions, traced by the electric pens on the moving tape, showed that the Commissioner had struck a sensitive vein in the doctor's emotional system.

"No," he repeated.

Peddler's Road

"Why did you keep that place on Peddler's Road?"

With every reference to the little portable cottage of blood and death the charts leaped at once into high peaks of emotional excitement and descended into valleys that might have recorded shame and despair.

"I like to have a place to hide in."

"Alone?"

"Yes."

Like stock brokers, Thatcher Colt and Dougherty were watching the tapes as they were fed into their hands by the silent young expert from Chicago. The District Attorney was exceedingly solemn and serious; he glanced at the Commissioner as if to indicate that he was beginning to have some respect for this apparatus.

"When were you last in the house on Peddler's road?"

"About three weeks ago."

"Anyone with you then?"

"No."

"Had Geraldine Foster ever been there?"

"No."

"Are you certain?"

"I have no knowledge that she was ever there?"

"But she was murdered there."

"I mean previously."

"Did you know she was going there this one time which resulted in her death?"

"No."

The chart lines during these last few questions were quite unimpressive. The emotional excitement in the doctor seemed to pass away when Geraldine Foster was brought into the question. No dizzy climbs of trace lines appeared when the murder was mentioned. It was on some subtler, obscure point that he trembled. But who could determine the meaning of this?

"Do you believe that murder is ever justified?"

"Yes."

His Beliefs

"How do you mean that?"

"I have philosophical ideas on the subject. I believe in euthanasia. But my notions have no bearing on this inquiry. I do not profess a philosophy opposed to the laws under which I live."

"But doesn't your philosophy hold that murder is justified, even if it is opposed to the laws under which you live?"

"Theoretically—yes."

"If sufficiently justifiable grounds arose, would you commit murder in spite of the laws?"

"I don't know."

"Think again."

"I say, I don't know."

"Why did you quarrel with your brother, George?"

"Because he did not approve of my private life."

"Did his wife also disapprove?"

"She did not know anything about it. What happened took place before she married my brother."

"Does she dislike you now?"

"She does not know me. As I do not associate with my brother, I naturally do not know his wife. We have never met."

"Will you look at this?"

Thatcher Colt for the first time gave into Maskell's hand the note which George Maskell had written that morning. The physician was plainly astonished, no, delighted.

"That's the silver lining for all this," he remarked, with unsteady voice.

"There is nothing to indicate they don't know you," prodded Colt.

"No," said Maskell, smiling broadly. "No—that's what's so wonderful about it."

Certainly, if the lie detector machine was to be trusted, the doctor had been telling the truth during these last few questions. The lines ran in even, undulating curves like the waves of a peaceful sea.

"Your brother is a clever lawyer," resumed Colt, "but how do you intend to explain to him the lies you have been telling me?"

"Lies?"

"Lies about your whereabouts on Christmas Eve. You know

TRAFFIC LOSS HERE LAID TO HIGH RATES

B. & M. Freight Expert Tells How Prestige of Port Can Be Restored

"Give Boston the same inland rates to and from Central Freight Association territory as Philadelphia and Baltimore have and tonnage that Boston has lost would be restored," said Charles W. Boynton, foreign freight agent of Boston & Maine Railroad, today at the rate differential hearing before Interstate Commerce Commission examiners in Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Boynton said it would help Boston still more if this city was given a lower rate than New York enjoys

RATES ARE BLAMED.

"The steamship companies stand ready to give service when there is sufficient tonnage to warrant, and if the inland rates to and from Central Freight Association territory (the Midwest) were equalized with those of Philadelphia and Baltimore business would return to Boston."

"Boston's grain export is made up now very largely of 'in-take' grain moving through Buffalo. Boston is not handling anything like the tonnage of grain it is capable of handling. Only 25 per cent of the capacity of our grain elevators was handled during 1926-7-8 through this port. The reason for the decrease of grain shipments through Boston is due to lack of steamship service which was brought about by the change in rates.

"Through ocean and rail rate via Boston to foreign ports are higher now than at other ports. Consequently, the volume of traffic has diminished to the advantage of our competitors and to the detriment of the port of Boston."

STORAGE CHARGES TOO HIGH.

Mr. Boynton said the two Boston & Maine grain elevators in Boston can accommodate 1,500,000 bushels of grain

Walter W. McCoubrey, steamship traffic expert for Boston Port Authority said

"The in-transit storage charges in Boston are absolutely prohibitive as compared to New York. In this city they are 5 to 7 times as costly as in New York and it can readily be seen why importers of freight who maintain stocks in storage at various North Atlantic ports are precluded from using the port of Boston because of the high in-transit storage rates, transfer and handling charges made by the defendant carriers.

"If the railroads serving Boston provided proper in-transit storage facilities at a low price much tonnage would be attracted here."

Two Injured as Car Hits Bridge

Proceeding south on Massachusetts ave., Back Bay, a sedan operated by Daniel B. Maloney, of Leominster, who, police say, is a public official of that city, struck the middle stanchion of the B. & A. railroad bridge near St. Botolph st., early today.

The radiator was forced back into the front seat of the wrecked car. Both Maloney and his companion, Timothy Tierney, of Bay st., Roxbury, escaped serious injury.

Police of the Back Bay station took them to City Hospital for treatment for multiple lacerations and abrasions. They were released after questioning.

12 COLLEGES COMPETE AT CARNIVAL

Sixty-one Athletes In Various Contests as Dartmouth Program Is Begun

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 6—In the presence of blonde Betty Schroder, 19, queen of the Dartmouth winter carnival, and her court, the Intercollegiate Winter Sports Union opened their annual meet on Occom Pond and Balch Hill today.

Sixty-one athletes from 12 American and Canadian colleges were entered in the various contests which began with speed and fancy skating contests, while skiiers were gathering on Balch hill

Dartmouth pinned its hopes on its winter sports team, winners of the President Harding trophy at Lake Placid this winter and the outstanding contenders for the intercollegiate championship.

New Hampshire was rated as a close second, being the defending champion, with McGill University a dark horse.

Tomorrow international stars will compete in the ski-jumping invitation tournament. They include Ludwig Boeck, German national champion; Roy Mikklesen, Norge Ski Club; Charles Proctor, former Dartmouth ski captain and a member of the last Olympic team, and John Carleton, also a former Olympic team contestant.

Six hundred girls from Wellesley, Radcliffe, Simmons, Washington, Smith, Vassar, Mt. Holyoke and other schools contributed to the gayety of the carnival.

LAWYER MUST GO TO JAIL

Charles J. O'Connell, a Worcester lawyer, must serve a year in the Worcester House of Correction for converting $1250 belonging to the heirs of John C. Sullivan to his own use, the Supreme Court ruled today. The court overruled exceptions on which he asked a new trial

O'Connell was found guilty after a long trial before Judge Thomas J. Hammond after charges of converting the money of a client to his own use had been made by the Worcester County Bar Association.

Judge Hammond imposed sentence, but stayed its execution pending argument on exceptions before the Supreme Court. O'Connell will be resentenced this afternoon or tomorrow.

New Boilers for Asylums Needed

A demand for the proper equipment of State institutions was voiced by Representative Daniel J. Coakley of Chicopee today at a hearing on items of the proposed $20,000,000 bond issue before the legislative Committee on Ways and Means.

Commissioner of Mental Diseases George M. Kline had explained to the committee that new boilers were badly needed in the Medfield and Gardner State hospitals. The boilers in question, he said, were 20 years old.

PROFESSOR'S WIFE TRAPS SUSPECT

Self-Style Agent Alleged to Have Taken Cash Orders for Brooms and Mops

The pathetic story of the "plight" of the "State School for the Blind" drew money and checks from alleged victims of John H. Shurtleff, alias John R. Stevens, according to the wife of a Harvard professor today

Shurtleff was in East Cambride jail today on a charge of peddling without a license, but police said other charges would be preferred against him when he appears in East Cambridge court Monday.

Mrs. Edward F. King of Longfellow ave. Cambridge, wife of Prof. King of the Harvard Observatory, said Shurtleff's story of financial difficulties of the school and its blind attendants moved her to make out a $2 check for several articles which Shurtleff said would be delivered from the school by parcel post

TRAPPED BY WOMAN.

The articles were brooms and mops supposed to have been made by the blind inmates of the school Mrs. King said, and she made out the check when Shurtleff is alleged to have said the money was needed immediately.

Another Harvard professor's wife is credited with having brought about the capture of Shurtleff, known a few years ago as the "college confidence man."

It was Mrs. Archibald T. Davison, of 22 Francis st., Cambridge, wife of the head of the Harvard music department, who brought about Shurtleff's arrest.

BECOMES SUSPICIOUS

Shurtleff is alleged to have visited her home a few days ago and taken an order. Instead of giving him cash she told him she would give him a check when he came with the goods. When he asked to have the check made out in his name she became suspicious.

When Shurtleff again came to her home, according to police, Mrs. Davison slipped into another room and telephoned police. She engaged Shurtleff in a conversation until Officer Joseph Doherty of the Brattle st. station arrived

MANY COMPLAINTS

Chief Inspector Patrick J. Hurley of the Cambridge police said that Shurtleff had victimized the wives of many prominent Greater Boston men by taking cash orders for brooms and mops which he said to have claimed were made by the inmates of the "State school for the blind."

For several months, Chief Inspector Hurley said, he has been working the exclusive residential section of Belmont, Brookline, Cambridge and Boston.

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

What is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip.

ONLY 2 FOUND WITHOUT NEW LICENSES

Another Has Unlicensed Cab and the Balance Are for Other Vehicle Violations

Names of 25 taxi drivers as alleged violators of the new taxi code were turned in today at police headquarters by 12 policemen, who cruised through the city last night and today checking drivers and cabs.

Only two of the drivers, however, are charged with operating without the new form of license, and only one for operating an unlicensed cab.

The other complaints were for allowing passengers to ride up front with the driver, for smoking while passengers were in the cab, for ignoring signal lights for occupying sections of a street which are neither special nor private stands, and for other minor offenses.

ONLY 1400 LICENSED

With temporary licenses void at 5 p.m. yesterday and the new taxi code in full effect today for the first time, only 1406 of the 2500 cabs in the city are licensed, and but 2970 of the 4200 drivers registered last Saturday have proper credentials.

Last year, in all, there were 4461 drivers in Boston, the figures indicating that 1771 drivers who took out licenses last year have not applied this year.

Under the new regulations, drivers must be residents of Boston, the police department allowing them until June to move within the city limits.

CRUISING SQUADS

Immediately following the voiding of temporary licenses at 5 p.m. yesterday, squads of officers started to cruise the city, and these and other squads will continue to cruise for an indefinite number of days and nights, checking on drivers and cabs.

Orders from Commr. Hultman to Deputy Supt. Thomas F. Goode, in charge of the taxi situation, demand he "shut down tight" on illegal operators as, in his belief, they have had plenty of time to comply with the new rulings. All violators will be prosecuted.

Taximen were unable to explain the large decrease in the number of licensed cabs and operators. They did, however, advance numerous probable reasons, chief among them being that continued operation under the new code would mean a losing proposition, and that many drivers were disgusted with the whole business, which, paying so little, requires so much red tape.

QUESTION OF STANDS

The increase in the fee for taxi licenses from $1 to $5 was blamed by many for the drastic drop. Many failed to get licenses in protest against the increase, taximen say, while still more failed because they were unable to pay the increased fee.

The question of stands also was included in many of the explanations for the drop. Many cab owners, it is claimed, failed to license their cabs from public stands believing there was still a chance to get back their former special stand privileges. Smaller companies doing business formerly at special stands are believed to have quit in the face of prospective losses.

WOOL BROKER IS IN COURT IN $35,000 THEFT

Dewitt R. Tompkins Faces a Charge of Larceny From Two Wool Companies

An attempt to have the charge against him dropped failed today in municipal court when DeWitt R. Tompkins, former wool broker and a Sunday school treasurer in Newton Highlands, was arraigned for the alleged larceny of $35,000.

Tompkins is charged with having taken $19,000 from J. W. Bastard Bros. Co., wool merchants of 184 Summer st., and $16,000 from F. C. Rawson, also a wool merchant, of the same address.

No wool was ever delivered nor was the money returned, according to the charge.

Tompkins' attorney, Stuart Rand, asked that the charge be dropptd because the former broker has made partial restitution, but Judge Adlow refused the request. The case was then continued for a week without plea.

Safes in two Boston coal offices were wrecked during the night and $175 stolen, according to the police.

Burglars obtained the money from a safe in the office of Standard Coal Co., 120 Lamartine st., Jamaica Plain, after smashing it open with a wrench, which they left behind. Other clues include finger prints on the safe hammer, pliers and a screw driver.

The office of the Mt. Bowdoin Fuel Co., 67 Norwell st., Dorchester, was wrecked during the night, although money in an unlocked cash drawer was not taken. A small safe was battered but not opened. Furniture was smashed and papers strewn on the floor.

THIEF FOILED IN BAY STATE RD.

Discovery of a break in an apartment in Bay State rd., where silverware and other valuables were found heaped up ready for removal, was reported by the police today.

A suspect was taken into custody when he was seen loitering opposite the apartment house, and according to the police, his footprints compared in size with muddy prints found on a piece of paper in the apartment.

The apartment is that of Mrs. Mary Pope Hinckley, who is away. Knowing she was out of town, the thieves took their time gathering the valuables and were to return for them tonight, police believe.

Sergt. Maurice Sullivan was sent to the place today to seek fingerprints for comparison with those of the suspect.

ABOLITION OF SCHOOL BOARD URGED

WHIDDEN FOR APPOINTING NEW BODY

Paid Commission Who Would Give Entire Time to Work Is Fin. Com. Member's Plan

Abolition of the Boston school committee is recommended by one of the members of the Finance Commission school survey committee in the final installment of its report, issued today.

The member, Reston Whidden, proposes supplanting the elected school board with an appointed Board of Education, whose members would be paid, who would give their full time.

Whidden, a member of the State Legislature with a reputation for independence, lives in Brookline. The other members of the survey committee are William D. Parkinson and Matthew Sullivan.

COMMITTEE UNANIMOUS.

One of the recommendations is for repeal of the law providing for the present school buildings department, which was established in place of the old schoolhouse commission only a couple of years ago.

A public hearing is to be held by the finance commission in the near future on the survey committee's report.

The chief faults with the present school system, which the committee states in its summarization contained in today's installment of its report are:

Lack of official responsibility, complexity and disorganization of the administrative mechanism, absence of any well-defined plan or any consistent policies as to carrying out of plans once adopted.

EXTREME WASTE CHARGED.

Also the alleged extreme waste in spending large sums for building enterprises which are later abandoned without any explanation.

The recommendations include one urging that steps be taken to place and define responsibility by obtaining repeal of the law constituting the board of commissioners of school buildings; that a superintendent of construction be appointed by the school committee for a term of years.

Another recommendation is that responsibility for all education and administration be placed directly on the superintendent. A strictly segregated school budget is also urged.

Adoption of a five-year or 10-year building program is recommended.

The board of education suggested by Whidden would consist of three members, two appointed by some city agency and the third by the state commissioner of education. Their terms would be six years each, expiring at different times.

The purpose, Whidden asserts, is "that the political atmosphere now so distinctly in evidence may so far as possible be eliminated from the management of the public schools."

PEEPER HUNT IN FRANKLIN SQ.

Because of the activities of "Peeping Toms" who have alarmed the 1100 girl residents of the Franklin Square House, South End, a policeman has been detailed for protection, it was learned today.

Mrs. Mabel Worcester, in charge of the house, admitted that an officer had been assigned following complaints by girls of being annoyed.

Capt. John M. Anderson of Division 6 said he had received complaints, and a plainclothes man was assigned for duty from 6 to 10 p. m.

It is understood the annoyers of the young women make their hideouts in a cemetery in the rear of the building, emerging late at night to climb firescapes and appear at lighted windows.

The girl residents of the house are either students or employed in Boston, many being quite young. Those who have been annoyed are said to have been either sitting up late at night studying, sewing or retiring.

GLORIA SWANSON TO MAKE 'TONIGHT OR NEVER' AFTER 'ROCKABYE'

COMEDY IS BOUGHT BY SCHENCK

Los Angeles, Feb. 6—I cannot think of a pleasanter way to spend a rainy afternoon than talking to Gloria Swanson. We had luncheon in Gloria's bungalow and then I watched her being made up and having her hair dressed. I stayed much longer than I should have considering the work I had waiting for me in my office but "Gloria came through with a story.

She told me that Joseph Schenck had bought "Tonight or Never" for her when he was in New York. It's a comedy adapted for the English stage by that excellent pair, Frederick and Fanny Hattor.

I think perhaps I'd better explain that before Gloria returns to the United Artists lot he will produce "Rockabye." Then she will make "Tonight or Never," she will produce "Rockabye."

Louella O Parsons She is choosing the title of "Love Affair" and he believes that now she has a story that is even better than "Tarnished Lady." We hope she is right. "Obey That Impulse" will be passed under the name of Incorrigible.

AGAIN THE METROPOLITAN'S stage bill delivers a knockout blow to its screen feature. The latter is "Once a Sinner," which takes an easy count of 10, while Duke Ellington and his Cotton Club Orchestra lift a triumphant hand, after a greeting that surpasses even that accorded Rudy Vallee recently. The Ellington unit earn their big pay, and merit that long-drawn-out applause accorded them.

DOROTHY MACKAILL is the central figure of the picture. She is introduced in this sophisticated yarns in the act of giving up "her past" in order to wed a poor country youth who turns out to be an inventor. Believe it or not. Fate plays a scurvy trick on the happy couple; it develops that the backer of the husband's invention is none other than the bride's former sweetheart, a weakly villainous gentleman who has good traits.

MISS MACKAILL is miscast, and never excites sympathy. Joel McCrea as the hero husband is just as unconvincing; the man whom he has supplanted in the girl's love is better done by John Halliday. The best role of all is turned in by C. Henry Gordon.

STARS SCORE IN VERDI'S "OTELLO"

By MOSES SMITH

VERDI'S "OTELLO," adapted by Boito from Shakespeare's tragedy, was presented by the Chicago Opera Company at the Boston Opera House last night. It was good to hear this penultimate opera of Verdi, for it reminded us of a fact that the Wagnerian feast of the last two weeks made us forget: that Wagner's was not the last word in operatic reform; that Verdi, with a genius opposed almost diametrically to Wagner's, was able and had the courage to avail himself of as much of Wagner's contributions as suited his own purpose.

• • •

AS SET FORTH last night, "Otello" seemed again the perfect opera, the most successful fusion of the various elements, the most apt balancing of parts, yet attained. The orchestra does not drown out the singers, nor does it ever make one forget them. The latter are kept almost continuously busy, as in the later Wagnerian music-dramas, but their speech is almost always melodic, rarely declamatory. Although there are no longer "arias" in the conventional sense, the melodies are at least quasi-detachable, with something of an independence of their own. The orchestra points and heightens the effects of the singer, becomes vividly descriptive in the storm scene at the opening, brilliantly dramatic on other occasions. The choral writing—especially that opening chorus—is masterly. And the libretto, to end a reduced catalogue of virtues, is a model of conciseness.

• • •

A "LYRIC DRAMA" Verdi called his "Otello," and as such it was excellently played last night. Vanni-Marcoux, the Iago, was the most convincing artist on stage, his characterization so unerring that he commanded—without bombast—the center of interest. Claudia Muzio's Desdemona was not far behind in its moving sincerity; and, as usual, she sang beautifully. Charles Hackett was better cast as the Moor than in any role to date. In stature, make-up and gesture, as well as voice, he suggested the jealously-wracked Otello. His was an excellent foil to Iago's machinations.

These three bore the brunt of the drama. But the lesser singers contributed to an excellent ensemble. Nor has the chorus sung—yes, and acted—any better previously in Boston.

YOUNG PIANIST ON PROGRAM

Miss Esther Miller, pianist, will be the assisting artist with the People's Symphony Orchestra, next Sunday afternoon at 3:15, in Jordan Hall. She is probably the youngest artist appearing with this orchestra since its inception in 1919.

The People's Symphony Orchestra was organized with the sole purpose of providing in Boston a series of concerts of the best music at such nominal prices, but unless $3500 is received within a short time the concerts cannot be completed. Appeals have been sent out to hundreds of residents of greater Boston.

COPLEY STAR WILL RETURN NEXT WEEK

When "See Naples and Die" opens at the Copley next Monday evening, Rachel Hartzell, whom Bostonians will remember for her clever work in the leading role of "Little Accident" when it chalked up the longest Boston run of last season, will have one of the principal roles.

Miss Hartzell's professional career has necessarily been a brief one, for she has not yet reached her 23rd birthday. But in the short time that has elapsed since her first professional assignment, her success has been assured and gratifying. It all started when as a boarding school graduate her family in Cincinnati sent her off on a European vacation in an effort to get her to forget the stage. It didn't work. For no sooner had the aspiring young artist arrived in Paris than she sought out some American friends at the English Players, and had her first opportunity to go behind the footlights.

On her return to America Miss Hartzell promptly secured an engagement in stock in Hoboken; but her stay there was a short one.

MARSHAL FOCH'S WAR MEMOIRS

FOCH TAKES COMMAND OF ALLIED ARMIES ON WESTERN FRONT

STEPS TAKEN TO SAVE AMIENS AFTER DEFEAT OF BRITISH

Disaster that threatened the Allies under the impact of the great German drive of March, 1918, was described vividly by Marshal Foch in yesterday's instalment. The British Fifth Army, under General Gough, had been shattered by the German thrust in the St. Quentin region, and Foch realised that unless some decisive Allied action were taken quickly "we were marching toward certain defeat." In today's instalment, Marshal Foch tells of the famous conference at Doullens on March 26, 1918, at which the British and French agreed to place in his hands the co-ordinating of the Allied operations on the Western Front.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH,
Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armes During the Closing Phases of the World War.

Translated from the French by Col. T. Bentley Mott.

AT THE COMPIEGNE MEETING General Petain described the greatly disorganized condition of the British Fifth army and the steps he had taken to come to its help—namely, the dispatch of 15 divisions, of which six were already heavily engaged. He asserted also that he could do no more for the present, having given the necessity facing him of defending the road to Paris, now threatened from the valley of the Oise, and perhaps from the direction of Champagne.

Being asked to give my views, I showed, as in in my note of the previous day, that the urgent danger lay in the direction of Amiens, where the German offensive had broken through the Franco-British front and produced a large gap, the first result of which was the separation of the British and French armies.

It was essential, at all costs, to re-establish this front and restore th liaison between the two armies, even should that entail some risks elsewhere. Bring up the number of divisions required to close the breach and bring them up quickly, such, in my opinion, was the line to pursue, the direction indicated for all our efforts

To what extent were the British able to co-operate in this plan? In the absence of his military advisers, Lord Milner was unable to reply to this question put to him by M. Clemenceau. He suggested, however, that another meeting be held the following day the 26th, with the British generals present. We therefore separated at Compiegne about 5 p. m., having arranged the meeting for 11 a. m. the following day at Dury

Gap Must Be Closed
But Foch's Advice Had Only Partly Been Heeded

At the moment this discussion at Compiegne was proceeding without any decision being taken, Field Marshal Haig was having a conference with General Wilson at Abbeville. Fully alive to the peril to which the Entente was exposed through the separation of the British and French armies, and convinced that it must at all costs be prevented, Sir Douglas proposed to the Chief of the Imperial General Staff that General Foch be immediately nominated Commander-in-Chief. His advice was as yet only partly heeded.

General Wilson reached Versailles that same evening and after having a talk with Lord Milner, he came to see me in Paris about 11 p. m. He suggested assigning to M. Clemenceau, whose technical adviser I would be, the task of "ensuring a closer co-operation between the armies and a better utilization of all available reserves."

I had no difficulty in pointing out to him how little the realization of this plan was to be desired, since, far from simplifying matters, it was likely to make them still more difficult. The arguments I developed at this meeting are clearly summarized in Lord Milner's memorandum:

"As far as General Foch was concerned he had no wish to command anything. All that he asked was that the two governments should definitely assign to him the mission of ensuring the maximum amount of co-operation between the two Commanders-in-Chief. In other words, he asked to occupy the same sort of position as he had formerly held during the battle of Ypres in 1914, when General Joffre had entrusted to him the task of bringing about, if that were possible, a closer co-operation between the British and the French. In the present case, however, he wished this appointment to be made by virtue of a special and higher authority, that of the two Allied governments."

Lord Milner and Gen. Wilson agreed in thinking that, in the existing circumstances, this would be the best solution.

Such roughly was the situation on the morning of March 26, as the conference at Doullens opened

[Marshal Haig was obliged to go to Doullens as he had summoned his army commanders to meet him there. At his request, this town was selected for the conference instead of Dury, which had been designated the previous day.]

When I arrived in that town, about 11 30 a. m., Marshal Haig, shortly joined by Lord Milner, was receiving the reports of his army commanders in the Town Hall. The meeting was a protracted one, so that I had time to make a visit to the little school house in which I and my staff had established ourselves on Oct. 6, 1914, when I arrived at Doullens to take part in the manoeuvre which was then carrying the opposing armies northward. This manoeuvre, as we have seen, brought about the battles of the Yser and of Ypres, with the definite repulse of the enemy

As my mind went back to this already distant period, when I compared our numbers, organization, armament and supplies as they were in 1914 with what existed now, I could not permit myself for a moment to admit that, powerfully reinforced as we were, we could allow ourselves to be beaten in 1918, when, with means so relatively meagre, we had conquered in 1914

The wise employment of our combined resources and an inflexible determination to win—there was still the formula for success. With the means at our disposal, the question of stopping the enemy was in the first place a matter of will power on the part of the i1fth Command. There was no doubt in my mind as to the outcome of the enterprise, provided the Allied chiefs, with eyes wide open to each succeeding danger, should meet and dominate it in a spirit of close and energetic co-operation. That is what we had done on the Yser and at Ypres—and under what conditions."

Must Not Retreat
But the British Had No More Troops Available

I developed these fundamental ideas in the presence of the members of the French government while we waited in the garden of the Town Hall of Doullens for the Allied conference to begin. It opened at 12:45 p. m. in the Town Hall. There were present on the French side the President of the Republic, M. Clemenceau, and M. Loucheur, and Generals Foch, Petain and Weygand; on the British side, Lord Milner, Field Marshal Haig and Generals Wilson, Lawrence and Montgomery

From the outset all were unanimous in recognizing that Amiens had to be saved at all costs and that the fate of the war depended on it. I made some strong remarks in this sense.

Our front had already been driven back to Bray-sur-Somme, behind the lines of 1916. It was essential not to retreat any further, not to yield an inch of ground without fighting, to hold on at all costs where we were and with the utmost energy.

Such was the first principle to be clearly defined and communicated to all; then it must be put into execution without a moment's delay, especially by hurrying up reserves and using them to weld together the Allied armies.

Now the British had no more troops available to send south of the Somme, unless they were taken from the Arras sector, which was being heavily attacked and which no one could think of weakening. Help, therefore, could come only from the French Army.

On being questioned, General Petain explained his program. He had decided to increase the number of divisions to be sent into Picardy; instead of the fifteen specified the previous day at the Compiegne meeting, he now proposed to move twenty-four on to Montdidier. In this way he hoped to prolong his front up to the Somme, but he could not guarantee it. This extension, however, would only be gradual and slow, because moving the divisions at the rate of two a day would require considerable time.

At the point of the proceedings, Lord Milner had a private interview with M. Clemenceau in the course of which he proposed that I should be entrusted with the conduct of the operations.

The French Prime Minister concurred in this idea and at once drew up a text through which I was charged with co-ordinating the operations of the Allied forces "around Amiens." Marshal Haig, perceiving at once the narrowness and insufficiency of this combination, declared that it did not correspond with the end he was seeking.

Foch in Command
Charged With Co-ordinating Allied Armies' Action

He then asked that the arrangement should be extended to include the British and French forces operating in France and Belgium. In the end, the formula was still further expanded so as to comprise all the Allied forces operating on the western front. Agreement was reached on the following text, which was signed by Lord Milner and Clemenceau.

"General Foch is charged by the British and French governments with co-ordinating the action of the Allied armies on the western front. To this end he will come to an understanding with the commanders-in-chief, who are requested to furnish him with all necessary information."

At 2 30 p. m. the Doullens conference came to a close and we went for a hurried lunch at the Hotel des Quatre Fils Aymon, which I remembered from 1914. As we sat down, Monsieur Clemenceau turned to me with these words

"Well, you've got the place you so much wanted."

It was not difficult to answer him and Monsieur Loucheur joined in my reply that to assume the direction of a battle which during seven successive days had been largely lost could hardly be the object of any great desire on my part, but rather constituted by reason of its risks, an act of duty and sacrifice in the service of my country.

Immediately after being invested with the mission which the two Allied governments had confided to me, I fixed my plan of action along the lines I had written to the French Prime Minister two days before. It can be summarized as follows

Plans Drawn Up
Mass Troops Are Transferred to Save Amiens

1—The French and British troops must keep in close touch in order to cover Amiens.

2—With this object in view, the forces already in action must maintain their positions at all costs.

3—Covered by them, the French divisions sent as reinforcements will finish detraining and will then be used, first to consolidate the fifth British army, and second to constitute a massed maneuver for employment under favorable conditions to be fixed later on. Instead of a British battle to cover the Channel ports, and a French battle to cover Paris, we would fight an Anglo-French battle to cover Amiens, the connecting link between the two armies.

I drew up the detailed arrangements for carrying out this general plan and, as time pressed, I went myself to explain them to those principally concerned.

Accordingly, by 4 p. m., with General Gough commanding the fifth British army, I was at Dury. I instructed him to maintain himself at any cost on the front he then occupied; he must hold his troops where they were until the French forces arriving to replace a part of his army, starting from the south.

At Dury I also met General Barthelemy, chief of staff to General Fayolle, commanding the reserve group of armies, and handed him similar instructions "with a view to assuring at any cost the protection of Amiens."

I requested Major Moyrand, liaison officer from French headquarters, to inform General Petain of these orders. I then telephoned General Debeney, commanding the First Army, giving him my instructions as to what he was to do.

The role of this army, which was still in course of formation facing Montdidier, was particularly important, for upon it depended at that moment the re-establishment of a continuous Franco-British front. I, therefore, followed up my telephone message by proceeding from Dury to Maigneisy to see General Fayolle personally and define his mission.

This was to employ all the units he had available to relieve the troops of the XVIII British Corps on their actual positions, turning over the elements of this corps as relieved to General Gough, who would employ them as reserves; also to hold his own line at any cost, joining up on the left with the British toward Rouvroy.

Before the close of the same day, the 26th, I had thus explained my intentions to all the commanders whose troops were in action. In the evening, moreover, General Petain cancelled his instructions of March 24 and ordered General Fayolle to cover Amiens and to maintain contact with Marshal Haig's forces. In addition, he directed that 10 divisions and four regiments of artillery be withdrawn from other groups of armies and moved toward the reserve group.

How to Escape FLU

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Eat plenty of citrus fruits. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have high resistance against germs.

4 Above all, avoid catching colds. They lower your resistance to the flu germ. Ward them off. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin dissolved in water at the first touch of sore throat, as this will relieve the soreness and reduce the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

CARNEGIE GAME FOR B. C.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1931

MAJOR MAGNATES AGREE TO DISAGREE

BOB QUINN, president of the Red Sox, says the American League this season will use the same ball just adopted by the National League. Col. Jake Ruppert of the Yankees says the two balls will be radically different. Ernest S. Barnard, president of the American League, declares the two types of ball will be only slightly different, or practically the same.

PRES. BARNARD.

Bob and Jake and Ernie can't all be right. Now just who is right and who is wrong? For the time being, let's take Barnard's explanation. He is the boss of the league and should know.

First, according to announcement from the National League, consider the new ball the parent organization has adopted. It has a thicker cover, thicker thread with raised seams and more glue between cover and windings.

Regarding the American League ball, President Barnard says:

"The new ball restores the raised seam, a coarse thread and longer stitches. The raised seam will afford the pitchers a better grip, enabling them to increase the spin of the ball and give it a better curve or break. The raised seams also will increase air resistance, thus making it seem reasonable that the new ball will not travel so far when hit.

"The National League," continues Barnard, "adopted a ball with heavier stitches and a thicker cover, but the cover thickness, carrying only one-twenty-one-thousandths of an inch, will make no difference. The National League ball will be used in world's series games in National League parks and the American League ball in world's series games played in American League parks."

NOW LISTEN to Bob Quinn

"The two balls will be the same," declares the Red box chieftain. "They are made in the same factory in Philadelphia. The ball will not have a raised seam. The seam will be on the level with the cover, not countersunk as before.

"Why, it is preposterous to think a ball with raised seams is to be used. That would bring back the freak delivery and give the pitchers such an advantage that hitting would be reduced to a positive minimum. Besides the raised stitches would tear a ball player's hands to pieces."

For the love of Mike, Mister Manufacturer, make up a few dozen National League and American League balls and send 'em around and let a feller see just what is what. The conflicting opinions have players, fans, experts going around in circles.

JOIE RAY is an athlete extraordinary. There never was one quite like him. The little Chicagoan started as an amateur boxer but was so good on the track that he was induced to take off the padded mittens and don spiked shoes. He ran more miles under 4.20 than any other middle distancer in the annals of sport.

Family growing and funds shrinking, Ray took up boxing again in hopes of showing enough stuff to warrant his turning professional. He found that the years had taken away his most valuable ring assets

After 20 years strenuous competition, the veteran of scores of classic cinderpath contests now has taken to snowshoeing. He is among the leaders in the 200-mile Quebec-to-Montreal Snowshoe Marathon, which ends in Montreal on Sunday.

JOIE RAY.

NEITHER SERA MARTIN nor Paul Keller, the two great French middle distancers, who are here for an American invasion, ever raced on the boards. Martin tried them out in training for the first time last Wednesday and found them to his liking. Keller, however, was all at sea. Paul will have a chance to recover his land legs and get used to board floor tracks before competing here in the Boston A. A. games.

SERA MARTIN.

Martin will get his baptism of fire at the big Millrose A. A. meet in New York tomorrow night. Great a runner as Martin is—he holds the world's 800-meter record—it is doubtful if he shows his heels to our own Russell Chapman of Bates and the Boston A. A. The Maine greyhound showed he was in the pink of condition here at the K. of C. meet last Saturday.

In addition to Chapman, the Flying Frenchmen will have to beat Pinkie Sober, holder of the national junior half-mile record and the Madison Square Garden 800-yard record of 1.56 1-5; Dale Letts of Chicago, holder of the Big Ten Conference half-mile title, and Fred Yeit of the New York A. C.

BABE RUTH leaves for Miami tomorrow. He thinks three weeks of sun and golf will put him in shape to jump right into baseball training.

THE STAGE is being set for the professional tennis invasion. Bill Tilden, Karel Koseluh, Frank Hunter and Emmet Pare. Big Bill will make his professional tennis debut here in the Boston Garden on February 20 after playing one-night stands in New York and Baltimore.

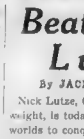
Fair crowds turned out to see the pro tennis stars at Punta Gorda but a big attendance is expected when they play at the Surf Club, Miami, next Monday and Tuesday.

Sherry Is Beaten by Lutz

By JACK CONWAY

Nick Lutze, California heavyweight, is today looking for new worlds to conquer as a result of his victory over Jack Sherry of Ohio in a stirring wrestling bout at a Paul Bowser show at the Arena.

Lutze pulled a sensation when he scored the first fall in 3m. 4s. with a reverse crotch. The second fall went to Sherry in 32m., an in sune crotch body lift and slam giving him the edge.



Jack Conway

It was a hard bitter match. Sherry forgot all of the rules of wrestling and punched, kicked and used his knee.

At times Lutze adopted Sherry's fighting tactics. Sherry would meet him half way and the rival grapplers would trade blows in the center of the ring much to the amusement of the crowd.

It was a Lutze crowd. Nick is a handsome youngster, standing six feet tall and weighing 190 pounds. He does not carry an ounce of extra weight and looks the part of the perfect athlete.

It was impressive the way Lutze came roaring out of his corner as soon as the match got underway Sherry tried to fight him off, but the youthful Californian kept pressing the issue. He suddenly scored with a reverse crotch and the crowd went into an uproar when Sherry was pinned in the remarkably fast time of 3m. 4s.

Sherry Forces Lutze Out Through Ropes

When wrestling was resumed, Sherry went in for kicking and punching. He drove Lutze through the ropes three times. The crowd booed Sherry's tactics, while Referee Charley Donnel warned him. All this did not appear to worry Sherry a great deal as he did much as he pleased until he counted with a fall in 32m. He used Lutze down with an inside crotch, body lift and a slam.

The action was spirited when wrestling was resumed. The rival grapplers each went crashing through the ropes. Sherry had weakened Lutze with headlocks when the Californian counted with a back fall for the winning toss in 13m. 20s.

Wykoff Beats Vassell in Lively Match

Lee Wykoff, former University of St. Louis star, won from George Vassell of California in 28m. with an aeroplane whirl and slam. It was a spirited contest.

Kewpie Kilrow, formerly of Boston College football fame, went over big in his mat debut, tossing Tony Gust of New York in 2m. 27s. with an Indian crotch, aeroplane whirl and slam.

Bruce Flowers Due in Boston Today

Bruce Flowers, who fights Sammy Fuller of the North End at the Arena on Monday night in an Argonne A. A. show, is due in Boston today. Flowers will complete his training here.

OUR MARY AND SPEEDY STELLA

MARY CAREW.

STELLA WALSH.

MARY CAREW AND STELLA WALSH are America's two Queens of the Track. Miss Walsh is the world's fastest woman sprinter. But Our Mary beat her in Boston Garden, last April, and may do it when the fleet feminine pair race for the worsted in the big Millrose A. C. meet in Madison Square Garden, New York, tomorrow. Read what Lydia Hess, noted woman athletic writer, has to say of the two track queens.

Stella Walsh Out to Win Over Mary Carew Tomorrow

By LYDIA HESS

I saw a diminutive, dancing-eyed, Peter Pan of a schoolgirl, Mary Carew of Medford, Mass., show her heels to the panther-muscled fastest feminine human, Stella Walsh of the New York Central A. A. at the Boston Garden last April in a 50-yard dash.

That was Stella's first defeat. Since then she has made world's records in Europe, but it appears that no international triumph has taken away the bad taste of smiling Mary's victory over her. And the main object of Stella at the Millrose A. A. track carnival at the Madison Square Garden, New York tomorrow will be to give a decisive trimming to Mary.

I wonder?

Mary did not win by any fluke. From one end of the telegraphers' bench at the Boston Garden, I saw enough space to toss a basketball between the tiny Mary (that's what she seemed), and the broad-shouldered, tall and brawny Stella.

I still maintain that Mary won by remarkable courage and headwork, as well as plain good running that would have gone credit to a crack schoolboy. My argument is based on Mary's own words, and my observations of her at the Garden before the race.

"Oh, sure. I knew she was a marvel."

"And I suppose you heard a good deal of talk about her among the girls, before the meet started?"

"Huh!" (A funny little exclamation, then a big grin.) "They tried to scare me—but I wasn't."

It seems that from the time of Mary's early arrival in the locker room, the girls kept ragging her about the invincibility of Stella. Whereupon Mary jumped into her running pants, slipped her woolly "track pajamas" on (in which she looks lost), and went out to look Stella over as she came in. That was my first sight of Mary—looking and looking near the entrance.

While Stella was limbering up on the track, I saw Mary, instead of joining the other girls in chattering groups, watching Stella like a hawk. She shifted here and there as Stella did, so as to miss nothing.

At the lineup Stella, with the weight of the crowd's expectancy upon her, was conscious of her power—yet nervous. She made a false start. Several other girls did Not Mary. She was steady as could be. And when the real start came, she was away while Stella was still thinking of going. I'm going to pin a good deal of faith on Mary Carew at Madison Square Garden.

Hoey Leading in Snowshoe Race

Montreal, Feb. 6 (INS)—Frank Hoey continued to lead today in the international snowshoe Marathon Running from Louiaville to Berthier. Hoey scored his fifth straight lap win. The distance was 25 miles.

Hoey is now leading in total elapsed time by more than an hour. Arthur Newton, South Africa, is second, Joie Ray, the American runner, is in 12th place.

Fists Fly in Maroon Game

Montreal, Feb. 6—Les Canadiens, pace setters in the Canadian division of the National Hockey League, emerged from their game here with the Montreal Maroons with a 4-to-4 tie, after one of the wildest ice games of this season.

Four major penalties were handed out by officials Hewitson and Cleghorn at the conclusion of a free-for-all fight on the ice which involved members of both teams

Sylvio Mantha and Johnny Gagnon of the Canadiens, and George Boucher and Nels Stewart of the Maroons, were the four men who received major penalties after the battle was over.

It was only after referees and other players struggled with the fighters that the clash was halted.

It was early in the opening period when George Boucher, defense star of the Maroons, body checked George Mantha of the Canadiens. Mantha collapsed after the crash and was carried from the ice.

Sylvio Mantha, elder brother of George, flared up then and came to blows with Boucher, and Stewart and Gagnon roamed into the argument with little delay.

The fight was the liveliest part of the game, for after the episode the teams settled down to steady hockey and even an overtime session could not break the 4 to 4 deadlock.

OLYMPIC TRIAL ICE GAME ON

In the first of the New England Olympic eliminations, Boston University and Northeastern, stars Back Bay rivals for athletic honors, will send their hockey teams against each other at the Arena tonight. In the other half of a double bill, the Boston College freshmen six will meet the B. U. first year outfit. The two games will be played alternately by periods, starting at 8.15 o'clock.

The B. U.-Northeastern meeting will be the first in more than three years between these two rivals. Only the mutual desire of both to take part in the Olympic eliminations has brought them together.

Tonight's clash, too, will go a long way in settling the hockey championship among Boston's smaller colleges. Northeastern and B. U. have both already beaten M. I. T., the third member of the group, so that tonight's encounter comes as a final round match.

In the other half of the double bill, the newly organized freshman sextets of B. C. and B. U. will clash. The B. C. cubs opened their season against the strong Melrose High team last week, and though beaten, played good hockey. The Pioneer first year six, after beating Lawrence Academy, took Exeter into overtime before yielding on natural ice two days ago.

Texan to Run in 1000 at B. A. A. Track Meet

Schoolboy Asks Release From Indians

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 6 (AP)—The Cleveland American League Baseball Club has been asked by Frank Cook, 17-year-old Grand Rapids high school athlete, to cancel a contract which caused Cook to be declared a "professional."

Cook also wants to return the $200 he borrowed from the Indians as an advance against salary as a pitcher beginning in 1932, following his graduation from the Union high school.

The contract caused an order of forfeiture of all high school football games in which Cook played. Whether cancellation would restore Cook to high school play would be decided by the State High School Athletic Association.

PITTSBURGH ELEVEN MAY FACE EAGLES

News of the negotiations for this contest have been withheld by Boston College authorities. Carnegie Tech officials are waiting only to settle the date of their meeting with Notre Dame before closing the game with Boston College

If the Eagles are successful in getting this game with Carnegie Tech for the season of 1932, it will give the Boston College team a chance to face one of the best known elevens of the country.

Carnegie Tech, during the past few seasons under the coaching of Judge Wally Steffens of Chicago, has won the football brickets and each season has been rated with the best teams of the country.

Whether the game would be played in Pittsburgh, home of Carnegie Tech, or Boston, has not been discussed as yet. The date of the clash would have much to do with the location of the fray.

MAX IS JAILED AND BAILED

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 6 (AP)—No stranger to legal complications, Max Schmeling will have to defend himself against a $35,000 damage suit in the New Jersey courts.

The world's heavyweight champion was arrested at Summit, N. J., yesterday and required to post $10,000 bond for his appearance at trial of a suit brought on behalf of Joseph Rahl, Jr., 20-year-old prospect of New York.

Asking $25,000 damages, Rahl alleged that Schmeling tossed him down the steps of a New York hotel last Monday when he attempted to serve Schmeling with papers in another suit. He additional $10,000 is sought by Rahl's father for loss of his son's services and for medical treatment.

LEVINSKY IS FAVORED OVER GAGNON

Whitey Hurwitz vs. Parise Apice, six rounds.

By RINGSIDE

Take your best girl, or grab someone else's, and hike, trolley or motor to the Boston Garden tonight to see the celebrated Kingfish Levinsky, Chicago knockout artist extraordinary, swap man-sized polthogues with Jack Gagnon, the powerful French-Canuck.

All it will cost for sweetie is the war tax. Handsome looking gals accompanied by an escort will be admitted free.

Tommy Loughran was one of the few boxers who were able to cause trouble for Levinsky. Loughran outscored him in 10 bouts, but admits that King is a terrific puncher.

Levinsky has the color and wallop that appeal to the fans. He has been training here for several days and appears to be in good condition for tonight's bout.

Gagnon is also a good puncher, as he proved when he stopped Tuffy Griffiths. If Jack decides to punch it out with Levinsky the fans should see plenty of action while the battle lasts.

The 10-round semifinal will bring together Lou Brouillard of Worcester and Alf Ross, a French welterweight. Ross takes the place of Sergt. Sammy Baker, who is ill.

Jack McCarthy of Roxbury will travel eight rounds with Pat O'Flaherty of South Boston; Joe Venuti and Leslie Baker travel six heats, as do Joe O'Donnell of Roxbury and Al Aldrich. Another six-round event will bring together Whitey Hurwitz and Parise Apice.

ANGEL GUARDIAN TEAM MAKES FINE RECORD

JOSEPH KENT WILLIAM DRAIN JOHN MOORE RICHARD LAFARGE HOWARD COLLINS

Guardian Six Is Speedy Outfit

An even dozen victories, only four defeats and a couple of ties are on the record of the senior hockey team of the House of the Angel Guardian this season.

Playing such strong teams as the Boston College freshmen, Dorchester High, B. C. High and other fast high school sixes, the Angel Guardian sextet has played consistently good hockey and hopes to clean up for the remainder of its schedule.

Captain Dick LaFarge, defense man, is the outstanding player of the Angel Guardian team. He is a fine skater and can carry the puck as well as using a skillful poke check to advantage.

Joe Kent, scoring teams with Moore and Drain on the first string line. The trio has developed its teamwork and in the last two games the three have scored 10 of the team's 18 goals. Moore, with 18 goals for the season, is high scorer of the team with Kent and Drain following in the order named.

Junior Sextet Has Regular Schedule

Another team, the junior sextet, represents The House of the Angel Guardian. Boys on this six are from the seventh grade of grammar school to first year of high.

Sixteen games have been played by the juniors, with the boys winning eight, while tieing three and dropping the verdicts in five contests. The opposition has been found among junior high school teams and amateur clubs and though the little fellows have had to play bigger boys, they have never been outplayed.

MALCHUS HOLLAND

Manager of Bruins Perfects New Type Hockey Puck

By BILL GRIMES

After two years of experimenting, Art Ross, manager of the Bruins, has perfected and patented a new hockey puck, which will be adopted by the National Hockey League next season.

The new Ross puck was on display during the recent board of governors meeting in Toronto. The pucks have been used in five games this season and the action carefully noted by referees, managers and players. All agree that they are a vast improvement over the old disc.

For years the puck has been a source of constant grief. At times the pucks lack uniformity as to hardness, being soft and others hard which develop variations in carrying, passing and shooting. Their knife-like edges cause them to perform all kinds of didoes, and at times they are unmanageable.

Often, it is necessary to freeze pucks and crafty managers have been known to insert "rabbit" pucks into games after acquiring leads on visiting opponents.

Although the new Ross puck has met with the size and weight specifications of the present disc, it has a hard, solid center with a medium soft outer edge, which is vulcanized to the core. The outer material has rounded-off edges which will tend toward keeping the puck flat on the ice, although no one can ever be so constructed so as to entirely eliminate rolling.

On any but the smoothest sheet of ice, a soft puck is uncontrollable. Yet players are constantly being criticized for their failure to handle "rabbits" after the ice has been cut up. Traveling at the pace of speed they are propelled during a professional game, pucks are very sensitive and even a trade mark stamp on the side is liable to cause a shot to go far off line.

Mickey Ion, the veteran referee, highly recommends the new Ross puck. Ion has seen the new puck in five games. The Ross puck is so firm that there is a sharp click as it is passed from one stick to another but it has retained the resiliency of the old disc.

LOUGHRAN, BAER MEET TONIGHT

New York, Feb. 6 (AP)—Max Baer and Tommy Loughran, who are matched to fight 10 rounds in Madison Sq. Garden tonight, have at least one thing in common, both have been beaten by Ernie Schaaf of Boston.

Loughran once dropped two decisions to Schaaf. Baer, in his last ring debut a few weeks ago was outpointed for his pains by Schaaf.

Few boxers ever came East more highly touted than Baer, but the Californian has not shown much to justify the ballyhoo. He looked aggressive enough against Schaaf, but he did not appear to advantage when given a knockout victory over old Tom Heeney the New Zealand blacksmith, as the officials got their mathematics all tangled up on the count.

On the basis of Baer's showing in his first two New York bouts, Loughran looks like the logical favorite to win, despite the fact that overnight he was on the short end of 7 to 5 odds.

Although the clever Philadelphian has had little luck with the heavyweights he should win easily, provided he can avoid the undoubted power in Baer's punch.

If You Don't Know

The Boston, Brooklyn and Chicago clubs opposed the adoption of a slower ball by the National League. Trick ball hurlers, such as Hod Eller, Dave Danforth, Russell Ford and King Bader, would have been virtually unbeatable and they been allowed to use a ball with raised seams. . . . The Montreal Maroons drew but 7000 customers to their match with the New York Rangers in Madison Square Garden on Tuesday night last. . . . The lowly Philly Quakers, however, worked a team attraction of 13,000 to 14,000 out of their two games with the Pirates at the Boston Garden and the Millions always pack the North Station [illegible] capacity. . . . As a sporting town, Boston is still several million miles ahead of New York, where only a wonder is supported. . . . Local hockey fans are wondering what is to prevent the European teams stacking the cards to keep the world's amateur championship abroad . . . Nothing, to our knowledge . . . In the title tourney, now in progress in Poland, total goals scored in a five-game round robin will decide the championship . . . It is admitted that the Boston H. C. and the six from Manitoba, Can. are by far the best teams in the field but on the day there is no [illegible] to prevent a weak European team allowing some other foreign outfit to score enough goals to gain the laurels . . . Pro-ball magnates are betting that Judge Landis will eventually beat Pres. Hall, owner of the Browns in their wrangle which is now in court. . . .

Every Cub Regular Has Signed Contract

Chicago, Feb. 6 (AP)—Every regular on the Cubs' 1930 roster has signed his 1931 contract and Manager Rogers Hornsby and Pitcher Fred Blake are already on their way to the training camp at Catalina island, California.

President William Veeck said only a few recruits had failed to send in their contracts and that none was considered a holdout.

Passing the Puck

With the exception of Manager Art Ross, Dutch Gainor and George Owen, the Bruins left for Montreal this morning. Ross and Owen will depart for the Canadian metropolis tonight on the Red Wing.

Capt. Lionel Hitchman was in the Bruin party but he may not get into action against Les Canadiens tomorrow night in the Forum. "Hitch" is recovering from an attack of the flu but is still quite weak, while Gainor is down with a heavy cold and was left at home.

There will be about 100 Boston hockey fans scattered throughout the Montreal Forum tomorrow night when the Bruins clash with the Flying Frenchmen. Although the Bruin rooters are most enthusiastic, they have an assignment on their hands matching their cheering with that of the "Millionaires."

Joie Ray, the former miler and marathoner, will be Art Ross' gue at the Bruin-Les Canadiens game. Joie is due to wind up his 200 mile snow shoe Marathon from Quebec city to Montreal tomorrow afternoon.

It took the Bruins 3d games to score their 100th goal this season, as just 24 games last year Cooney Weiland caged the century counter versus Chicago. Last year and Red Beattie put the Bruins into three figures against Detroit.

If the Dartmouth varsity is desirous of retaining its Hanover prestige it will be in its advantage not to play a regular game with the freshmen. The Class of 1934 at Dartmouth is represented by a finely balanced sextet, which has not met with defeat.

Although Jim Eustis, the new building superintendent of the Garden, has only been on the job for a week or ten days, he has made many fine improvements, notably in the visiting dressing room.

Manager Jack Adams of the Detroit Falcons witnessed the University Club-St. Nick game in New York and was very much impressed with the former Boston College captain.

Warren Cote Traded to Buffalo Club

Toronto, Feb 6 (AP)—Vice-President James Dunn of the Toronto baseball club of the International League today announced that Pete Cote, diminutive shortstop of the Leafs, had been traded to the Buffalo club for pitcher Art Mills.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

In the correct swing the club-head is returned to the ball with your head still, moving neither up or down nor forward into the direction line—and with your whole attention on the ball—you let it punch directly through and with the hands as even with each other in respect to their height from the ground as they were in your address. Then, after the clubhead has swung through and the limit of reach with your left arm attained, your right forearm rolls over and forward, toward the hole which makes the club swing outward, up and around to its finish. This applies with wood and irons, all swings being alike in this respect. Now this is a wholly different action from the hitting, batting, striking action so common among thousands of learning players. Also it calls for smoothness of action, and is the reason you always are cautioned not to be mauled and rhythmic. Make a few practice swings determining the mean while to have your hands in their address relationship as the club swings through the hull, and perhaps the reaction will give you a most helpful golf lesson.

DON FLEET IS ILL ON EVE OF BIG RACE

Donald Fleet, the Eagles' quarter mile ace, and the hope of the one mile team, is suffering from a bad cold, which threatens to turn into the grip.

When the Eagles set out for New York this afternoon, it will be a partially crippled team even before the race begins with several fast teams at the Millrose games tomorrow.

Fleet is going to run but whether the Gloucester boy will be able to turn in the performance that he did at the Prout games last Saturday night is another question.

Fleet complained of not feeling well at the beginning of the week and was excused from practice. His condition has not improved greatly since then though he still insists that he is able to run.

Boston College fans are anxious for him to recover for the race in New York, in which the Eagles will be matched with Holy Cross Syracuse and Georgetown will be a foreshadowing of the results of the meeting with the Crusaders at the coming B. A. A. games on February 14.

Ryder has had several ten years at the Heights. But now the harvest seems to be at hand. For on the one mile team he has only one senior and three sophomores who have two more years of varsity competition.

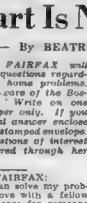
Best Cure for Broken Heart Is New Friend

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I hope you can solve my problems. I'm in love with a fellow who seems to care for someone else better than me. I'm 17 years old. Sometimes he is wonderful to me and very loving, and other times very mean. Just at present we haven't been out or had much to do with each other. It's breaking my heart. Is there anything I could do to make him change? Should I try to forget him? Of course I know I would have an awful time doing this. Should I go out with him when he asks me to? Should I be mean to him like he is to me?



Beatrice Fairfax

PATIENT LOVER.

Dear Patient Lover: There wouldn't be much to gain by being mean to him if you don't feel like it, because then you'd just feel twice as bad afterwards. I really think that he's probably quite undecided in his own mind and perhaps a little too young to be true to any one. So why not accept invitations from some of the boys and just make up your mind to have a good time any way. As I have said before in the column, the best cure for a broken heart is a new boy friend. Don't quarrel with him, but be as indifferent as possible for you to be and still be friendly, and perhaps the fact that you're not prostrated with grief over his actions will make him realize that perhaps you're a little valuable to him. At any rate, don't take it too seriously, because you're both quite young.

Sees Many Girls

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I read your column and how you have helped many people every day. I am a girl, big for my age, and considered good-looking. I know a great many boys and am quite popular with them, but there's a boy I like very much. He is an usher in one of the theaters near my home. Every time my chum and I go to the show he smiles and says "Hello" to me. At first, when I went up there, he used to look at me and find me a seat, no matter how crowded the show was. He doesn't know my name and neither do I know his, but would like to. How can I get better acquainted with him?

WONDERING.

Dear Wondering: On general principles, I should advise that you do not make friends with ushers in the theater. Has it occurred to you that he probably sees hundreds of girls and has opportunity to talk to them, and I do not think it would be wise to let him become too friendly. A moving picture house is just as public as the streets, and certainly you would not encourage any friendship from strangers in that way. Try and make friends among the boys you know and pay no more attention to this young usher.

Fight Your Wrinkles Early

Hints From the Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

IN COMBATING wrinkles it pays to make an early start. With the wear and tear of modern life it's easy enough to let the phiz get so-so. It takes time to mend to beauty's ways. But the oiling of the complexion every night is not something to forget. It should be done from the age of 18 up to 80. Oil keeps the cutaneous surface smooth. Friction stimulates blood streams, tones tissues, keeps fibres firm. And don't overlook the astringent effects of cold water.

They say you cannot paint the lily and the rose. But Lily and Rosie can. What some of them do with eye shadows and high lights is certainly a strain on the optic nerve of the public. Why can't the dear girls understand that startling make-up is old stuff? It has been faunted since the World War, and now chorus is a war waged against it. The correct cosmetic stunt is deep ivory powder, with a slight orchid eye shadowing and lips barely brightened with an application that is precisely and exactly the normal, healthy tint.

Opera singers have high chests and full, firm necks. Why? Because in the cultivation of vocal art they learned how to breathe properly. They aren't shallow breathers. They breathe from way down stairs. Five minutes night and morning of deep inhalations through the nostrils and exhalations through the mouth with a rushing whistle will do more for a weepy chest and a fiddle string neck than massage and applications will accomplish in a month of Sundays.

Girls who are forever trotting to bootmaker to have built out on their heels should learn to walk properly, plant the foot squarely and boldly upon the pavement instead of turning it in on the outer side. It is a wonder they escape having bowed legs, since that trouble comes from bad foot posture when walking.

Your First Spring Hat

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—Time for a Spring hat! And that's a pleasant idea. Because even if folks do put on Spring haze before they put on any other part of a Spring costume, it means that Spring is on the way.

The first Spring hat probably requires more careful thought than any other article of a Spring wardrobe.

Why? Because probably you're going to wear it with a Winter coat for a while, but you'll also want to wear it with your Spring coat. So your figure on a hat that will do for two kinds of costumes

And a small, brimless hat that fits the head closely will probably be one you'll consider. Again, why? For two reasons.

(1) It's going to be one of the smartest hats you can wear this Spring. And (2) it will fit inside that big fur collar your Winter coat has.

Shows the Hair

This new Spring hat may look a bit strange to you when you first try it on. Because it's built, as are all fashionable Spring hats, to show a lot of your hair. And it's only lately we've been seeing much of hair when hats are on.

It will sit well back on your head, leaving most of your forehead exposed — if it's put on right, and it fits you right. It will probably have a rather irregular line around the forehead. And that makes it easier to wear than a hat with a straight, even line.

Another hat that fits the Winter coat collar and is a smart Spring fashion is the tricorne—three cornered—or the bicorne—two cornered.

New Materials

These hats have brims, to be sure, but they turn back to form these two or three points, and so don't interfere with the coat collar. You've seen them this Winter. And we've had a new Spring

Unusual Brims

Another new idea is the mixture of straw with cellophane or a mixture of wires and wool. And do you know what this does? It gives the hat a half dull, half shiny look that's different from anything you've ever seen in hats.

If your Winter coat collar isn't big and upstanding so it would interfere with a brim, then you may like one of the new, unusual looking brimmed hats.

The one sketched above is a good example of several fashion details you'll find in almost all trimmed hats. It's rolled up over one eye, the crown is shallow to make it sit well back on the head, and the brim is what the milliners call "manipulated"—meaning that it's turned and twisted in an intricate fashion.

Of course these aren't by any means all the kinds of hats you have to choose from. But to wear right now, they're the most fashionable. And they'll be just as fashionable later on.

Invitation That Was Mislaid

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

Here is my predicament. I was cleaning my husband's pockets out to send his suit to the cleaners and in one pocket I found an invitation to the wedding of one of our dearest girl friends. The wedding took place about a week ago, and what am I going to do? Of course, I want to send her a gift, but how shall I go about it? I don't want her to know my husband was so forgetful

CONSTANT READER

And what a predicament this is! I believe that the only thing for you to do about this now is to send a present, with a note to her apologizing for being so late, and not mentioning the unhappy fate of the invitation. In other words, make your wedding gift so perfect in taste and choice and your note so perfect in expression, that the invitation will be given to these loselinesses and will be taken from the fact that the invitation met an untimely end. Then, too, as soon as you can, make some social gesture that will assure her that your friendship for her is deep and most sincere.

Correctly Introducing One's Mother

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

Will you please tell me the correct way of introducing one's mother? Is it correct to mention the last name?

H. S.

The form "this is" is a very appropriate one to use for this kind of family introduction, and it can, if we put the proper expression into it, become one of the most gracious kinds of introduction. And for women and men, older people and younger people

"Mrs. Allen, this is my mother, "Mrs. Forbes, this is my mother" . . . both are correct.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Diet Hints Requested by Worried Mothers

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WLEX.

SEVEN LETTERS today from seven different New England towns and each one signed, "Worried Mother"—and each one asking about the proper diet for children of various ages.

I always hesitate to lay down out and dried rules for child feeding, because every mother knows, in planning the ideal diet for a child is easier than getting the child to eat it. The time to teach a child to like foods that are good for it is while it is a baby. Tomatoes, cereals and trained vegetables given to him are the first step in this training and the young baby accepts them gratefully.

Martha Lee

If economy must be practised for the rest of the household the child should not suffer for it. I feel it in the diet. However a sensible economy is necessary to remember that dried fruits, cereals and milk are the three most important and most economical items on your meat list.

One of the hardest periods of the young mother seems to be from the time the baby is four teen months old to two years of age. Most of the diet schedules seem to be made up for children up to 12 or 15 months, and from there on is where many young mothers make food mistakes that often affect the child all the rest of his life.

At 14 months a baby should eat all his food from cup or spoon, and the first meal should be at 7 or 8 o'clock in the morning, as is most convenient. There should be eight ounces—one fine glass—of whole milk part of which is poured over 3 or 4 tbsps. of cereal which has been cooked in top of a double boiler for at least one hour and then strained through a fine sieve.

This cereal is best cooked in milk, a part of milk taking care of 2 tbsps. of cereal and sweetened with a level tsp. of sugar and a pinch of salt, half a slice of toast can be increased to one slice at 18 months to a quarter cube of butter, and one or two slices of bacon is a good addition to the slices at 18 months and 4 tbsps. of orange juice. This can be varied by bread or roll instead of toast, and a half of a coddled egg, which can be increased to a whole egg at 18 months.

At 12 o'clock noon, you can give a cup of vegetable or cream soup, one slice of toast or sweetbach with ¼ cube of butter and 2 to 3 tbsps. of beef stew, or tbsps. of beef or minced chicken, or the lean portion of one small lamb chop finely chopped. A serving of cornstarch pudding (2 or 4 tbsps.), or junket or stewed prunes or apples (2 tbsps.) will complete this meal

At 5 p. m. there should be a glass of milk and a small slice of buttered toast or swiebach or a roll, or a cookie, and at 6 p. m. a glass of milk, 3 or 5 tbsps. of cereal with 1 tsp. of sugar, a half slice of bread or toast with ¼ cube of butter and 1 to 2 tbsps. of stewed fruit, or honey or jelly.

Will the mothers who have written for a diet for children from 12 to 6 years, watch this column next week, when I'll try to make room for their special schedule?

Meanwhile, any special baby feeding problems that I can help with? Service is my middle name, you know, and it's always a pleasure. Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

P. S.—Don't forget to sharpen up your pencils, and send in all your receipts for using bacon and spaghetti for the second big contest. There is $100 in cash prizes for the lucky winners. Send all recipes to the Macaroni Contest Editor, care of Martha Lee.

Our Round Table Recipes

SIX AWARDS of $1 each will be published each Saturday for the best recipes and household chosen from those printed in this column during the week. The household suggestions may include not only recipes, but any sort of helpful hints for housewives—economical cookery or housekeeping in any of its forms.

Kissed Garson

She met Kitty without a trace of self-consciousness, rush up and kiss Garson; but it was a kiss that meant nothing beyond buoyant friendship. The introduction to Jim Tracy ended with a hearty handshake between the men. In Connie's eyes Garson was the center of the group; his every movement reacted upon her subtly with diminutive tremors.

"Did Connie tell you the news?" Kitty demanded, gayly.

"What news?" he asked, smiling at her.

"Jim and I have just found out today that we are both crazy about each other!" Kitty declared, enthusiastically. "Believe me, it's one grand and glorious

TIGER HEART

By Robert Terry Shannon

THEIR concern—their swift recognition of her disturbance—was unbearable. They meant to be friendly, but each word they uttered carried a sting.

"Oh, you're both silly," she said, sharply impatient. "My head swam for a moment, that's all. Excuse me a minute."

She went into the booth, seeking Garson. In the hallway she met him coming from the dining room. When he looked at him her vision was fogged and she saw him blurred like an image reflected in water.

"I had a talk with Higgins and I think I made a better go of him," Garson told her, crisply. "He won't touch a thing in the house, rest assured. His fear is stronger than his dishonesty, and he'll behave absolutely."

There was no change in Garson's manner and Connie was conscious of a great relief. Despite all this, though, he did not, apparently, sense the change that had come over her. About him, still, was that peculiar physical aloofness that implied on his part, almost personal indifference Yet, just to stand near him in the hallway, apart from the others, was for her to absorb tiny shoots of magnetism that charged her nerves with electricity. Unsettled, she made a desperate effort to steady herself and fight off his disconcerting influence.

She met Kitty without a trace of self-consciousness, rush up and kiss Garson; but it was a kiss that meant nothing beyond buoyant friendship. The introduction to Jim Tracy ended with a hearty handshake between the men. In Connie's eyes Garson was the center of the group; his every movement reacted upon her subtly with diminutive tremors.

"Did Connie tell you the news?" Kitty demanded, gayly.

"What news?" he asked, smiling at her.

"Jim and I have just found out today that we are both crazy about each other!" Kitty declared, enthusiastically. "Believe me, it's one grand and glorious feeling. Of course, I was a lot crazier about him a day or two ago, but I didn't know I felt that way about him—and he didn't know I felt that way about him."

Jim Tracy glanced quickly at Connie, a bit uncertain; then, half playfully, he put an arm around Kitty's waist and drew her against him.

"Then I think we are crazy, Mr. Garson," he smiled, with a trace of apology. "It's just one of those things, I guess. You know, I was engaged to marry Connie until she gave me the air. It makes me feel like a polygamist or a bigamist, or something—but Kitty knows all about it, and it makes the first balance. You see, I thought so much of Connie that I wanted to keep in the family, somehow, and Kitty and I started clicking with each other right off the bat—"

"I guess we'll be asking for everybody's blessings before long," Jim included.

"Well, I've known Kitty for a long time and she's a grand girl," Garson said quietly. "I never knew her to fail so hard for anybody before. You're a lucky man, Mr. Tracy."

In the back part of her mind Connie still disapproved absolutely of this hasty affair; she still kept her unaltered opinion that Jim Tracy was a fortune hunter, but overshadowing all else was her knowledge that other people's affairs could never stir him as deeply as his own. Kitty, in her spontaneous reaction to Jim, found nothing but sheer delight; to Connie there was an uncertainty, a distress that amounted almost to pain, in her own surprising state. She heard the others talking, but their words now had little or no meaning. All of her, her whole mind, was concentrated in profound speculation.

Time and again she asked herself the same question. If it was love, there was with it also an instinct of flight. Unlike Kitty, she had not the easy impulse to surrender. Yet, there was a sense of humiliation, a feeling that she was a victim of some hitherto unsuspected weakness. Her engagement to Jim had been on a different plan—that had been an cheerly conventional that it had violated none of her sensibilities. With Jim she had merely fallen into the line of march with the social herd. Engagement and marriage—mere planning of them, at least, were routine. Yet, looking back, she wondered if her consent to marrying Jim, so lightly given, had not been, in truth, a revelation of shallowness. And now—again—she was into another situation.

Pride rose in her, a resentment, an impatience with herself that made her strained and unnatural, for fear of revealing her feelings she grew more distant to Garson. It seemed as though the little group would never break up and give her the chance to be alone

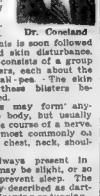
"I'll just leave you two alone—I expect you've been waiting to get rid of me and Jim all evening," she said, with a laugh. "Don't explain, please, darlin'!" Connie cried, suddenly, unexpectedly.

Shingles Fix on Tired Man

Elderly People More Susceptible

—By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.—

ONE of the most annoying conditions that doctors encounter is the so-called "shingles." It is extremely painful, obstinate and wearing. It is quite disabling when affecting old people.



Dr. Copeland

This disease is usually found in elderly people but may occur in young adults and children. It is quite rare in persons of middle-age

Fever is the first conspicuous sign. This is soon followed by a localised skin disturbance. The eruption consists of a group of small blisters, each about the size of a small pea. The skin surrounding these blisters becomes inflamed.

The blisters may form anywhere on the body, but usually they follow the course of a nerve. They appear most commonly on the abdomen, chest, neck, shoulders or arms.

Pain is always present in shingles. It may be slight, or so severe as to prevent sleep. The pain is usually described as darting, tearing, drawing or tugging.

An acute attack may last from one week to as long as six weeks. In old and feeble individuals shingles may last for months and even for years

The disease has two redeeming features: In children the pain is usually slight or entirely absent. Secondly, shingles seldom occur twice in the same individual.

The exact cause of shingles is not known, though it is believed to be due to an infection. Atmospheric changes, exposure to cold and wet, commonly bring on the attack. The disease is believed by some to be a sign of a run-down or fatigued condition. I often speak of it as the tired man's or tired woman's disease.

The treatment is essentially local. Care must be taken to protect the parts involved from injury and infection. This is accomplished by daily dressings with antiseptics and soothing lotions.

The disease is rarely dangerous to life. Occasionally it is followed by persistent neuralgic pains. This is particularly common when occurring in the aged.

It is always best to consult a physician, so that all the necessary precautions should be taken. His advice will lessen the pain and danger of complications.

Answers to Health Queries

1—B. Q.—What would you advise for dow mentality?

2—What would cause puffiness under the eyes?

A—For the treatment would depend upon the cause of the trouble. Have a talk with the doctor who is familiar with the patient's condition. He will advise you.

2—This symptom may be indicative of a heart or kidney disturbance or it may be due to poisonous digestion. In this case also examination will determine the necessary treatment

3—Low blood pressure, anemia, autointoxication or a generally run-down condition may be at the source of the trouble. Have an examination and follow your doctor's advice regarding treatment.

Alone With Duke

"Blessed, I believe you are blushing, Connie," she teased her. "See, I wish you two could feel as happy as I do."

She slipped to the edge of the veranda and looked out over the sweeping country silvered in moonlight. "What a night! You country dose something to me—it makes me feel so ALIVE. I'll sleep like a log tonight, and tomorrow I'll see Jim. No more Tenth Ave.! What a break for me—what a break!"

Chair-Warming Executive Is Out of Date

Strenuous Trips, With One-Night Stands, Usual; Chester's Views

—By B. C. Forbes—

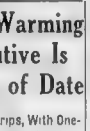
The old-time manufacturer or other large employer used to sit in state at his desk, usually dignified, perfectly confident, according "audiences" to his own principles and such other visitors as were accounted important enough to enter the sanctum sanctorum of his presence. Had any one suggested to such a gentleman that he hustle out after an order, there would have been an explosion. A recommendation that he pack a suitcase and do a series of one-night stands here, there, everywhere in strenuous business, sleeping each night in a Pullman, would have been regarded as an insult to proprietorial dignity.



B. C. Forbes

* * *

The most modern of chief executives not only make it their business to spend weeks at a time hurrying from point to point in the field along the firing line, but they take with them such co-executives as stand to benefit most from extensive first-hand contact not only with company representatives, salesmen, etc., but with customers and consumers.

For example, the president of the largest food company in the world, Colby M. Chester, Jr., has just returned from such a trip on which he was accompanied by Vice-President Francis, in charge of sales, and Vice-President Ralph Starr Butler, in charge of advertising. Mr. Chester says he thus learned more in a few weeks than he could possibly have learned in a year sitting in his New York office.

The itinerary of these General Foods Corporation officials included a score of major cities, among them Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, Oklahoma City, Dallas, Memphis, Atlanta, Richmond.

Sharing New England and Middle Atlantic states, as well as the main parts of Canada and also the Pacific coast, will be covered.

* * *

Asked about his experiences, Mr. Chester said in effect:

"It is most refreshing to visit cities where the people act as if they were genuinely glad to see you, and as if they weren't impatient, as is so often the case in New York, to get rid of you. Almost everywhere we found merchants, bankers, manufacturers and other business men most willing to give us information about their local conditions and to furnish us with any facts we desired. We took occasion sometimes in small get-together meetings as to whether they used any of our products, and, if so, how they liked them and what suggestions they could give us any helpful suggestions.

"There is a lot you can't learn about your business and how your goods are regarded by confining yourself to your office or making occasional visits to your own factories. The outside viewpoint often is illuminating, especially when you can get opinions without revealing your identity."

* * *

Asked how he found general conditions, Mr. Chester said:

"The contacts we made convinced us that the bottom of the depression was reached in December. Nothing has developed to change that conviction. We don't think just when the upswing will come, but certainly there will be no further depression.

"New York's mental attitude has been the worst in the country. In Philadelphia and Chicago business people are more active and more confident. In Denver the feeling is fine. Detroit, of course, felt severely the curtailment of payrolls last fall. Conditions in the drouth region naturally are far from cheerful.

"On the whole, however, we have returned confident that the trend from now on will be at least moderately upward."

* * *

This incident was printed the other day about President James A. Farrell of the United States Steel Corporation. A telephone call to his office some years ago requested that a man be sent to an architect's office regarding an order for steel. Mr. Farrell himself went and was told that the order was for only 20 tons. As Mr. Farrell was booking it gracefully the architect asked who the salesman was. On learning that it was the president of the Steel Corporation he said he had been taken up with such a puny order, the architect apologized. Mr. Farrell said that no apology was necessary and added:

"If you know where an order for ten tons more might be hooked up in the Bronx, I'll get into the subway and go after it."

Later the same architect visited Mr. Farrell at his office and gave him an order for thousands of tons for a big new steel structure.

With all the over-production that has been noted in recent years it is indeed surprising to learn that Wool Industries Research Assn. conducting a series of experiments to find out why blue and black wool and how they can be made to grow thicker and faster on living animals. The research work is being done on at Lewis End land, mentioned by the Venerable Bede was the capital of a small state in the year 800.

Lewis was also renowned at one time for its possession of a mineral gas plant. The word research seems just fitted some how, since wool is being grown on sheep than is produced explained by the fact that old wool as well as new is employed in the manufacture of goods.

Woolworth	+ 4.5 P. C.
Grand-Silver	+ 2.8 P. C.
Kresge	+ 2.7 P. C.
W. T. Grant	8.6 P. C.
McCory Stores	7.7 P. C.
J. J. Newberry	+ 17.1 P. C.
Edison Stores	+ 53.9 P. C.
Lerner Stores	+ 17.6 P. C.
Melville Shoe	+ 12.1 P. C.
S. H. Kress Co	+ 4.7 P. C.

Comparisons of chain stores sales in the past have been misleading, inasmuch because of considerable increase in number of stores now operated over 1930, however, was distinctly not a year of expansion. Hence current comparisons offer a fair showing of results. It is to be borne in mind, however, that Saturday is a big chain store day, as a rule, and there was an "extra" Saturday last Month. This in itself would not be of sufficient importance to account entirely for the major gains

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Moderate improvement in important divisions of American industry and a forecasted increase in the forward tonnage of the U. S. Steel Corporation in January, to be known in final week's report, induced better buying of stocks today in both investment and speculative circles. The $18,000,000 decrease in brokers' loans pointed to still further accumulations in strong hands and there were indications that the market was again being overrun by the "big bears."

New York Standard Aids Oil Shares

Improvement in the oil stocks followed announcement today that Standard of New York had declared the regular dividend. Amusement stocks were inclined to pick up the rally which was interrupted by yesterday's heavy raid.

Bears in Steel Hunt for Cover

Bears in United States Steel took to their heels today as that stock soon came under heavy trading to around 2 points over yesterday's low

Auburn Auto Again Big Upside Feature

A drive against the bears, who have been "selling the market" rather freely in the last few days, resulted today in a sharp run-up in late specialties, Auburn Auto soon jumping 8 points to the year's highest price. Worthington Pump at the same time advanced about 5 points.

Investment buying appears to be coming into Worthington on all recessions.

Bond Market Factor in Influencing Shares

Action of the bond market continues to show itself an important factor in influencing the general trend of shares. Today's bond market was steady, with Liberties and Treasuries holding their new gains. Call money renewed unchanged at 1½ per cent.

Quiet Buying in Warren Brothers

Quiet scale buying has been noted in Warren Brothers at times recently, because at existing levels the stock gives a yield of around 8 per cent on the current dividend of $3 a share per annum. It has been estimated that earnings for 1930 were not far from the $5.59 a share reported, in 1929.

Outlook for Warren Brothers is viewed as exceptionally satisfactory. With heavy expenditures authorized by various states, cities, counties, etc. throughout this country for road work, and with indications that there is likely to be a good volume of business from foreign countries, the results for the current year probably will again be favorable.

Montgomery Ward Sales Outlook

Considerable talk has been heard that long position in Montgomery Ward should be avoided until there is more definite information on the future purchasing power of the agriculturists. However, there are still some interests who are optimistic on the longer term outlook. They point out that the current year has started quite favorably with sales in January down only 9 per cent, which is less than the lower prices for merchandise would cause.

General Foods' Floating Supply

Market interest report that the floating supply of General Foods has been steadily reduced the past month or so. The stock has been well bought by important interests who have been impressed by the stable earning power. Quite some of the purchasing has been for the long pull.

Better Demand in Caterpillar Tractor

At times recently there has been a better demand in Caterpillar Tractor and that stock has indicated an upturn. The company is said to have made some progress in reducing bank loans last year. Caterpillar owns basic patents which are reported to be becoming more popular with other tractor manufacturers. The action of the stock has been attracting a moderate following from the trading contingent.

Big Increase in Hupp Shipments

There was a big jump in the shipments of Hupp Motor last month. Trade advices are that deliveries amounted to 1561 cars compared with 253 in December. Last month's total was still considerably under January, 1930, when 2000 cars were shipped by the company. It will be interesting to watch for the figures for future months.

Weather a Factor With Canada Dry

Sales of Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc., in January were approximately 10 per cent below January, 1930. Decrease was entirely attributable to the slower business in the South, owing to tight credits and unfavorable weather. Case sales in New York city during January were ahead of the like month of 1930. The last time in several months that sales have shown an increase over the same months of the previous year.

General Refractories Nearer Normal

Movements in General Refractories have been nearer normal of late, and the stock has responded readily when new buying has made its appearance. There has been little resistance on the rallies, and what profit-taking has developed was easily absorbed when small recessions occurred

General Refractories was affected in the last half of 1930 by liquidation of a block of stock which is said to have been acquired by a group planning an operation in the issue. Before activities could be started in earnest the market became weak and, while an attempt was made to hold the stock for a time, the consistent declining trend in the general list finally resulted in a disbanding of the pool holdings. Poor earnings in the last half also affected the stock

Earnings Reports Comparisons Made

Earnings reports, compared with those for the corresponding period of a year ago, and dividend announcements by leading companies shape up as follows

	Since Jan. 1	Since Adjs
Increasing earnings	56	8
Decreased earnings	304	8
Unchanged dividends	353	12
Increased dividends	23	2
Decreased dividends	33	1
Omitted dividends	41	2

Bethlehem Steel Plans New Financing

Bethlehem Steel is reported to be planning new financing shortly, but it is understood that the details have not as yet been finally determined. The report, however, indicated that the new financing probably would take the form of a $25,000,000 note issue. Part of the proceeds of the note issue are expected to be used for the acquisition of McClintic & Marshall which was announced yesterday and purchase of new construction. In view of the unsettled conditions in the stock market, it is hardly likely that Bethlehem Steel will seek to raise new capital through the sale of additional common stock.

Pierce Negotiates for Anderson Co.

New York, Feb. 6—Receivers for Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co. of St. Louis announced that four firms were negotiating to take over business of embarrassed brokerage house. One of them is E. A. Pierce & Co. of New York and Boston, which was negotiating before failure. Pierce recently reorganized and shows company to be solvent and that it is planned to pay all creditors in full.

WARREN BROS. AND EDISON SET HIGHS

Strength in Edison and Warren Brothers featured today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. Edison shares sold around 4 points above the previous closing level and Warren Brothers was 1¼ higher. Both issues were at new highs on the current move.

The remainder of the list was dull with but minor changes recorded. Eastern Gas & Fuel was a wide mover, losing 2 points in early dealings, but recovering completely later in the session.

Fractional losses were shown for Shawmut Association, Torrington, U. S. Electric Power and Gillette. Atchison was 1¼ higher and American Telephone added around a point.

First National-Old Colony Corp. has reduced bankers' acceptances during the four months or less one-eighth of 1 per cent. New rates are 30 40 and 90 days 1 to 1½ per cent; four months, 1¼ to 1½ per cent. Five and six months' bills are unchanged at 1¾ to 1¾ per cent.

Shawmut Corp has reduced acceptance rates ⅛ per cent to 1¼ to 1½ per cent up to 90 days, 1¼ to 1¾ per cent for four months and 1¾ to 1¾ per cent for six months.

Calumet & Hecla Consolidated Copper Co. is advising stockholders that dividends paid by the company in 1930, $1 on March 15 and 50 cents on June 30 were distributions of surplus considered nontaxable under the federal income tax.

The entire amount, however, should be returned as taxable income in Massachusetts income tax returns.

$418,597 Is Earned by Waitt & Bond

Waitt & Bond, Inc., reports for 1930 net income of $418,597 after depreciation, interest, federal taxes, etc., equal after dividend requirements on the $2 class "A" stock, to $1.09 a share on the 300,000 shares of class "B," against $489,726, or $1.46 a share on the class B," in 1929.

STOCKS RALLY IN DULL NEW YORK MARKET

New York, Feb 6—Pivotal leaders repulsed another bear raid in today's trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The bears quoted by lost heart and important shares rallied in dull trading.

When professional bullish activity was resumed in some of the specialties, advances of a point or two grew numerous. Important buying failed to appear, just as yesterday's decline failed to attract any selling of consequence, but a few sensitive issues displayed considerable buoyance.

BONDS MAKE PROGRESS

The bond market made further upward progress, but the fact that new offerings this week were only $21,325,000, or about one-tenth the volume of the previous week, reflected the paralyzing influence of the recent unsettlement created by the soldier bonus controversy.

Such stocks as T. & T. Bonus, American Telephone, Westinghouse Electric, Liggett & Myers B, American Tobacco B, Borden, Coca-Cola, Montgomery Ward, American Machine & Foundry and Eastman showed advanced 1 to 2 points.

The list appeared to be governed largely by internal conditions, few news developments appearing to have impelling character. The further reduction in brokers' loans, while amounting to only $18,000,000, was of course a good omen, as indicating no letup in the strengthening of confidence in the money market.

This makes the 13th decline in 19 weeks, in which period the sum of $1,506,000,000 has been taken off the total, leaving only $1,176,000,000 in this category of loans, which is approximately the level of November, 1924, when the 1924-1929 bull market was but a few months old.

In view of the huge increase in the volume of listed securities since 1924, the current level of loans indicates a condition of deflation much more thorough than then existed.

LOAN TO GERMANY

Report that one of the larger French banks was planning participation in a loan to Germany was regarded in Wall Street as highly constructive, for France has for some time been planning the Development of an international capital market in Paris as a means of utilizing her excessive stores of gold and alleviating the ill effects of this concentration on monetary metal.

Thus far, however, little has been done save the arrangement of loans to some of the smaller countries in Central Europe known as France's political allies.

International bankers, of course, hope to see Wall Street resume its activity as a leading world capital market, but last autumn's collapse of foreign bond prices has made investors wary.

In the meantime, the glutting of the money market continues. Despite the easy credit and currency requirements, the Federal Reserve was able to withdraw a little of its outstanding credit in the past week.

Bankers' acceptance rates were cut ⅛ of one per cent again today, making reduction of ¾ of one per cent since the first of January and recording new lows in the history of the dollar acceptance market. For short maturities the new rates are 1¾-1½ per cent. Other credit rates were unchanged.

BOSTON TRADE IS REVIEWED BY DUN'S

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston that in a few lines trade is showing moderate increases, but the majority of concerns still have to experience the expected improvement.

Gray goods are much more active and orders for print goods during the past two weeks have been heavier than for a number of months. Heavy cottons still are slow, though there seems to have been some improvement.

The New England mills were more interested in raw cotton this week, and some orders for extra staple grades have been booked, but the aggregate purchases were not large.

Some large orders for coarse insulating yarns have been placed during the week, and a considerable volume of business has been done on coarse and medium counts of weaving yarns. White prices are not very satisfactory to the spinners, the market is firmer.

Paints and wallpaper are more active. Orders for pig iron have been light, though there are some fair-sized orders in sight. Textile machinery is slow. The steel fabricators are placing very few orders at present, though work is being started which will require 25,000 to 20,000 tons of structural steel.

Shoe factories are fairly active and some are reporting slight increases in production. The activity is mostly on the low-priced staple numbers, with a slight increase in the port effects. There has been little increase in leather buying, however.

Wage tendencies have been downward in Haverhill, but upward in Brockton.

Who Is Fighting Revere Proposal?

The proposal for expansion of Revere Beach, in order that all the people may find room to enjoy this beneficent gift of Nature, is too simple in its essentials to be whispered to death by secret foes in the Legislature.

A board of experts could be selected from existing government departments to devise the engineering methods of enlarging this wonderful outdoor recreation ground.

If such a survey required any considerable expenditure, it would be well worth every dollar that could be appropriated for it.

But it contemplates no cost at all, because the work is going to be done by no extra-legal Wickersham Committee, but by a committee of regularly-employed and regularly-paid officials of the State.

It is now fifty years since the Legislature was warned that the capacity of Revere Beach would be threatened by "a swarm of people that may reach 45,000 on a busy day." That "swarm of people" has grown to 500,000 on the hot days of Summer and the capacity of the beach for bathing purposes has diminished rather than expanded.

If there are men of influence in the Legislature with private axes to grind, let them come out into the open in their opposition to this Revere Beach matter which commands the ungrudging support of the vast majority of the people.

The kiss of death is not going to be permitted to be applied to this Revere Beach matter in secret.

The Garrett Verdict

Renews Arguments Concerning Jury System

The disagreement in the Garrett case will revive the discussions of the strengths and weaknesses of the jury system.

It was only a few years back that Mr. Daniel J. Gallagher, debating the proposal for majority jury verdicts, described the euphemistic strong-arm man who gets himself onto a jury for the purpose of influencing a verdict one way or the other.

Mr. Gallagher was then a prosecutor, not the counsel for the defense, and the views which he and others expressed in the Constitutional Convention ought to be read in the published debates of that distinguished body.

The jury system has pretty well withstood the assaults and the experiences of 150 years. But the complexities of our modern economic system, the disrespect of law brought on by prohibition and the decline of respect for the public service have installed difficulties against unanimous meeting of the minds of twelve men. The method of jury selection will also encourage scrutiny of the entire system at this time.

Garrett is entitled to a unanimous verdict of twelve jurors. So are the people of Boston. Mr. Foley says the trio will be tried again at once. The public commends this attitude, and hopes that as many trials will be had as are necessary to bring about a unanimous verdict, one way or the other.

Time to Aid Wild Life

Abraham Lincoln saw a pig caught in a fence. He stopped his horse, alighted from his buggy and extricated the injured animal, although soiling the best and only suit of clothes he owned.

He discovered an injured snowbird in the timberland. He sheltered the bird in his warm coonskin cap and trudged home bareheaded through the falling snow. When the bird's wound had healed, by his patient care, he took it back to the woods and set it free.

If Lincoln had the time, patience and love to do this, we could at least try to emulate his kindliness.

The fields of New England are snow-covered. This is the season of year when the game and animal life find it most difficult to subsist.

The city dweller can afford a few crumbs of bread; the boy on the farm can replace the damaged nests or set up the little snow-shelters. A small contribution to some organization like the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals would be put to good use for our dumb friends.

It is a good time to absorb the philosophy of Him who marked the raven's fight or sparrow's fall.

Women

Liars? Thieves?

Women are born liars and thieves, says a British writer and social worker:

"As a sex," declares this authority, "they are fundamentally less honest and more devious than men. It is so often and so loudly said that the female has more moral sense than the male, that some females are in danger of believing it. They forget that they have always taken pride in riding roughshod over male argument as to right and wrong, even to twisting of motives, not to mention mere words. Vanity is the mainspring of half the success that women achieve. Feminine fastidiousness is not usually outraged by peculation, and does not formulate a definite code as to the rights of other people as to their belongings. No woman is really surprised if another steals."

So that's that. It might be added that women are also more courageous than men. Only a woman—in this case it happened to be Mrs. Cecil Chesterton, wife of a noted British author—would have the nerve to make that statement. No man ever would.

Must They Turn to Crime?

HUNDREDS of men huddled idle in the darkening rain . . . ragged coats . . . ragged eyes—

A dreadful picture. But there's a still more sinister side to the unemployed picture, a side of which, perhaps, you've never thought. Here it is—in a few, snarling lines. Yes, it's a real letter and he's probably telling the truth. You don't believe it? Ask any cop.

Elsie Robinson

"Here is a genuine case for you to concentrate on. I am now 21 years old. I well educated, but cannot get a job. I have been unemployed for over a year and regret to inform you that during the last three months I have had to take up a life of crime.

"I am now in a position where I am not sure that, were prosperity to return, I would be even interested in the jobs I could get. I have found that, by working a few hours in a month, I can make more money than I could if I were working honestly. However, I know that the law of averages is decidedly against me, and, in time, I will be apprehended. I would greatly appreciate anything you could . In your column for me and thousands of others of my kind who are forced to do this because of the times.

"Very truly yours,

"YOUNG FATALIST."

Oh, yes? And I suppose you think, son, that because I'm a woman, I'm going to snivel over your sad plight, or because I'm a journalist I'm going to shriek with alarm. Don't fool yourself. I shall do neither. Sorry because you haven't a job? I'm sorry for anyone who hasn't a job. But believe that you've "had to do this because of the times?" Not for a second!

You haven't turned criminal because you can't get a job. You've turned criminal because it was easier than staying straight. Yes, I know exactly how hard it is to stay straight. I know, too, its ghastliest detail. It means body and soul raveling into rags. It means such desperation that you lose track of time and the days ooze together into a meaningless blur. It means gagging at the smell of food, and going dizzy with hate at the sight of the rich and warm.

That's what staying straight through months of unemployment means. How do I know? Because I've been there. And a century of jobs won't erase that memory. It won't erase that memory, either, for the unemployed men and women who are going through the agony of this winter.

But they're staying straight in spite of that. They're hungry and cold and homeless—millions of them, but they're still keeping faith with thegnei
